HANDS ON OR INTERFACE

I can't imagine the dedication and sheer bloody-mindedness it must take to row across the Atlantic Ocean, yet that is exactly what a four-man team from Antigua have done. Competing in the Talisker Whiskey Atlantic Challenge, the four friends left the Canary Islands and 30 grueling days later arrived home in Antigua to a well-deserved heroes' welcome. Just to put this in perspective, my first Atlantic crossing in a sailboat, which followed a similar route, took 35 days. This is the second four-man team from Antigua to row the Atlantic and I'm sure it won't be the last. Perhaps next time it will be an all-female team? You never know with Antigua. You can read about the rowers' amazing adventure on p90.

This month we publish our guide to Sport Fishing in the Caribbean (p58). Sport fishing tournaments take place throughout the Antilles and their popularity is on the increase. Huge advances in technology and a willingness by fishermen to embrace conservation has brought the sport into the 21st century. Tag and Release is now widespread and bringing big game fish ashore to the scales is almost a thing of the past. Fighting a 500-pound fish on 30-pound test line requires immense skill and concentration, seamanship and teamwork between captain and crew is a must. The comradery on sport fishing boats is celebrated and the exploits of some fishermen and the fish they have caught have passed into legend. Hunting the denizens of the deep, Hemingway says it best: "Never have I seen a greater, or more beautiful, or a calmer or more noble thing than you, brother."

Love them or hate them, computer games are here to stay. If you are a sailing family and your children seem to spend most of their time at sea staring at a smart phone while complaining about lack of a Wi-Fi connection then you are not alone. Parents might not thank us for publishing an article about gaming while afloat (p34) but as more young people take to the water you can be sure they will do it their own way. All we can do is try and keep up.

EDITOR' CHOICE

One of the nice things about being an editor of a magazine like All At Sea is that occasionally I receive books to read and review. An advance reading copy that recently dropped through my letterbox couldn't have arrived at a better time as many boatyards in the northern Windward Islands are stacked with hurricane-damaged boats.

Fiberglass Boat Restoration, The Project Planning Guide, by Captain Wayne Canning is an interesting read for anyone tempted to acquire, repair and restore a damaged fiberglass vessel. The first chapter 'What is a Project Boat and Is One Right for You?' sets the tone. Following chapters help you plan the work and point out some of the pitfalls should you get it wrong. The book is solid on common sense, something we sailors often lack when it comes to the love affair we all seem to have with our own boats. As our article on page 44 points out, there are many bargains to be had right now but great care must be taken lest that must-have bargain ends up as the carcass of a very costly albatross hanging around your neck. This book might help you avoid such a catastrophe.

Metal Shark's latest 35ft Defiant 35 is now in service with the Puerto Rico Police Department

ANOTHER NEW METAL SHARK PATROL BOAT FOR PUERTO RICO POLICE

Louisiana-based boatbuilder Metal Shark has delivered its latest new law enforcement patrol boat to the Puerto Rico Police Department (PRPD).

The new 35-foot Defiant welded aluminum pilothouse patrol vessel, built at Metal Shark's Jeanerette, Louisiana production facility, joins the fleet of 36-foot Metal Shark Fearless-class high performance center console patrol boats delivered to the PRPD a year ago.

The new boat features a fully-enclosed, climate-controlled pilothouse for all weather operation, outfitted with Shock-wave shock-mitigating seating for a crew of four. Triple Mercury 300HP Verado four-stroke outboards push the vessel to speeds in excess of 45 knots.

The Metal Shark 35 Defiant is the first new boat to enter service with the PRPD since Hurricane Maria devastated Puerto Rico in September.

"Metal Shark is honored to support the Puerto Rico Police Department with the most advanced, capable, and durable law enforcement boats on the market," said Henry Irizarry, Metal Shark's Vice President of International Business Development, during crew familiarity training aboard the new vessel in San Juan last December. "These boats are a vital part of the PRPD's efforts. They are operated in open-ocean conditions, around the clock, for up to 3,000 hours per year, so safety and reliability are crucial." www.metalsharkboats.com

SAINT CROIX INTERNATIONAL REGATTA IS BACK!

Having suffered damage to infrastructure thanks to the storms of September 2017 there was some doubt as to whether the regatta would go ahead. But, like many islands, St. Croix were having none of it and worked extremely hard to put on their regatta. And this one is special as it marks the regatta's 25th anniversary.

In a candid comment, a spokesperson for the regatta told All At Sea that "our docks look almost like those in the picture!"

The event takes place March 9th -11th. Entry is just $150 and there's the skippers weight in Cruzan Rum for the winners of Spinnaker, Non-spinnaker, and Rhodes 19!

REGISTER NOW FOR SALTY DAWG SPRING CRUISING RALLY FROM ANTIGUA TO THE US

Registration is open for the Salty Dawg™ Sailing Association (SDSA) Spring Cruising Rally from Antigua to the US, departing May 15 from Falmouth Harbour.

Departure will follow several days of social activities, weather briefings, and boat preparations. The SDSA say the departure site has been changed to Antigua from Virgin Gorda in the BVI due to damage caused to facilities by Hurricane Irma last fall.

To recognize Salty Dawgs and other cruisers who are volunteering their efforts to help reconstruct the lives of islanders after the destruction of the last hurricane season, the SDSA Spring Rally will accommodate those cruisers who wish to join the rally and depart from an island other than Antigua as well. THE MOORINGS AND SUNSAIL NOW OPERATING FROM NEW CHARTER BASE IN FRENCH ST. MARTIN

The Moorings and Sunsail reopened operations in St. Martin in February, just four months after the Caribbean's record-breaking hurricane activity and just in time for the sold-out St. Maarten Heineken Regatta. Both brands are operating from their new charter base location at Marina Fort Louis, in the island's French capital of Marigot, which will house a diverse fleet of monohulls, sailing catamarans, and powerboats.

"Nothing could have prepared us for the devastation that September's hurricanes brought to St. Martin," said Josie

Tucci, Vice President of Sales and Marketing. "We couldn't be more thrilled to invite charterers back to one of our most popular destinations, and from a brand new base location in a world-class marina." www.moorings.com / www.sunsail.com

BITCOIN AND DENISON YACHT BROKERS

Yacht broker Wiley Sharp of Denison's St. Thomas office recently brokered a deal for a 48ft sailing catamaran in the Virgin Islands. Nothing unique there, you might say, until you look at the transaction. Using Coinbase, a digital currency exchange headquartered in San Francisco, California, the buyer converted bitcoins to dollars to purchase the yacht.

The brokerage said their client approached them about using Bitcoin, which is the most common type of cryptocurrency, and familiar with Bitcoin, Denison readily agreed.

With an eye on the future, Denison accept Bitcoin for brokerage yachts and as payment for their in-stock inventory of new yachts.

"There are Bitcoin users of all ages, in South Florida and across all continents, buying and selling luxury goods. We need to be present and available to all potential clients in all marketplaces, and accepting Bitcoin allows us to do that," Bob Denison said. denisonyachtsales.com

SAINT THOMAS YACHT CLUB WINS IN FAVORITE YACHTING BAR CONTEST

The St. Thomas Yacht Club was named Wight Vodka's favorite yachting bar in the Caribbean, the accolade comes as the club gears up for the 45th St. Thomas International Regatta (STIR) March 23-25.

"It's an honor to have received this recognition, especially as the club is still recovering after the effects of hurricanes Irma and Maria," said regatta director Bill Canfield.

The yacht club, located beachfront in Cowpet Bay, won the annual contest in a special category to recognize bars that were hard hit by the hurricanes of last fall. Regatta info: stthomasinternationalregatta.com

NEW PRODUCTS

TWIN DISC HELPS MAKE DUFFIELD 58 A GAME-CHANGER

Oftentimes, it's the last-minute changes in a boatbuilding project that make all the difference when the owner takes the helm for the first time. Such was the case with the new Duffield 58 from Duffield Yachts. Well into the build, Twin Disc and distributor Palmer Johnson Power Systems stepped in with a proposal to transform the vessel's handling, including an MGX QuickShift® transmission, state-of-the-art EJS controls and hydraulic thrusters. Quick work and coordinated efforts resulted in a smooth-operating vessel with precise maneuverability that had its new owner ecstatic over the performance.

With a displacement of 53,000lb, the Duffield 58 isn't a heavyweight. This is due, in part, to its single Cat C12.9 diesel engine. It's also what made an advanced propulsion system a requirement. Unlike twin screw boats that can move sideways using only its throttles, a single propeller in a boat this size is ineffective. The Twin Disc configuration delivers exacting maneuverability by simultaneously actuating the throttle, transmission and thrusters. Using one of the three EJS joysticks—main helm, flybridge and tethered remote—the vessel will move in any direction proportionate to the force exerted. It's so intuitive that docking and piloting around tight obstacles can be accomplished by even novice boaters.

"I can't tell you how easy it is to operate this boat by myself," said Travis Duffield. "The amount of confidence I have putting this boat anywhere is unparalleled. I don't care if it's windy, the tide's rippin' out or how tight the slip is, wherever I move that joystick, the boat's going to go. I've run a lot of boats in my day and none are as easy as this boat—it's kind of a game-changer for me."

Because of the Duffield 58's oversized, lifting swim platform and limited engine room space, a retractable Max Power hydraulic stern thruster was chosen. A recent upgrade to Twin Disc's Express Joystick System (EJS®) provides for its use with a wide range of CAN-based digital systems. Twin Disc engineers simply programmed the EC300 Power Commander single lever control to synchronize the thruster's power with the EJS.

The striking Duffield 58 is a California take on the classic Down East-style cruiser. Single-level, open living in its expansive, well-appointed main salon and centerline helm provide panoramic views. The boat's luxurious master and guest staterooms, crew quarters and two heads are forward. The slippery hull and power combination delivers a cruising speed of 17kts at a mere 25 gph. More information, visit: www.duffieldyachts.com & www.twindisc.com. A video of the boat's maneuverability is at: youtu.be/8Aeppyw_OMs

NOW'S THE TIME TO PROTECT OUTDOOR FABRICS

Modern outdoor fabrics may be tough as nails, but they still need to be protected from dirt, grime, oil, mildew, bird droppings and other environmental contaminants. Iosso Water Repellent forms an invisible shield that safeguards WeatherMAX, Sunbrella and other solution-dyed acrylics, and keeps them looking their best. It's equally effective on leather, vinyl, canvas, and laminated and coated materials.

Iosso Water Repellent doesn't darken or leave an oily feel like solvent-based chemicals. Instead, the unique formula mimics the fabric's original finish, in both look and feel. It contains no silicone, so the material retains all its qualities, even breathability. It's perfect for awnings, Biminis, covers and shades, enclosures and seating.

Easy to use, the product is applied generously to clean, dry fabric. It can even be soaked in the solution. For additional protection, a second coat can be put on after five minutes. Once it has thoroughly dried for 24 hours, it can be exposed to water.

Thirty-two ounces of concentrate makes two gallons; one gallon of concentrate makes five gallons.

package. A larger Component Gen-Kleen disperses the components throughout the engine compartment as space allows. www.centekindustries.com

SINGAPORE STAN

SAILING HUMOR BY CAP'N FATTY GOODLANDER

Stanley not only stood his watch, he shared ours as well. He could not get enough of sailing offshore

My wife Carolyn and I love people. We often attend parties as we sail, invite people aboard for dinner, and mingle with the dirt dwellers ashore. In addition, we adore having guests—but only for brief periods of time and only while in port. Why? Because guests can seldom adapt to the hardships offshore. They begin to whine. And they are always twice the trouble at sea—Carolyn has to spoon-feed them; I have to make sure they don't get hurt.

So two of our firm rules of living aboard are: no long-term guests and no guests offshore.

None of which was on our mind while, in the middle of our third circumnavigation, we went ashore to Changi Village in Singapore to see Brad Pitt in Fury, a well-acted (if violent and dreary) WWII flick. Seating is assigned in Singapore. It is a place you don't break the rules without due consideration. Thus, in a nearly empty movie, we were bunched cheek-tojowl with the other attendees – just in case an additional 500 movie buffs required sequential seating.

We arrived early. Carolyn, ever hopeful, mentioned popcorn.

"Are you crazy?" I asked her. "We could cruise Thailand for a month on what a Small Buttered costs."

People were coming and going through the previews and government propaganda—they were standing up and milling around. Just as the movie started, the neatly-dressed young man sitting next to us regained his seat, handed me a Small Buttered, and put his finger to his lips for silence as the movie began to unspool.

The popcorn was excellent.

At the end of the movie—as the credits started to roll—he and I spoke concurrently, with me saying, "Thank you!" and him asking, "Are you on a boat? Can I buy you a cup of coffee at Starbucks?"

One good deed deserves another. His name was Stanley. We invited him and his date aboard Ganesh, our 43-foot Amphitrite ketch, for a leisurely lunch that stretched delightfully into dinner.

They took us ashore for tasty treats. This resulted in Stanley giving us a nearly weekly tour of the gourmet restaurants of Singapore, one of the best 'foodie' countries in the world.

Despite being separated by 40 years in age and thousands of cultural and racial differences, Stanley and I hit it off. He was in search of adventure. I was fascinated by Asian culture. We exchanged war stories. I learned as much from him as he did from me. He started hanging around Ganesh more and more. I taught him how to sail a Laser, tie a bowline, and handle a dinghy.

I blush to admit it but I began to think of him as the son I never had.

He was like a sponge—all I had to do was tell him something once about the boat, and it was forever incorporated into his actions. Plus, he was the politest of Singaporeans—a gentleman who stood out in a sea of perfectly-behaved Asian gentlemen.

First he was part of our watery entourage, then a member of the family. He cooked us Asian meals during all the Chinese holidays. He helped our granddaughter Sokù Orion with her Mandarin. If our daughter Roma needed to get someplace—he'd drive her. If we were hungry, he'd bring us to a food court—and cook us a tasty treat with the help of an army buddy who owned a stall there.

Stanley is a man of diverse talents.

And he never asked for anything in return save the pleasure of our company.

It was like I'd fallen into a Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid buddy movie—with the most unlikely of candidates.

But circumnavigating is all about continuous change—and about the same time we headed sou'west to Cocos Keeling, Stanley signed a contract with a company to work for a year in Xi'an, China—home to the Terra Cotta Warriors. This is about as far inland as you can get in China, at the very end of the Silk Road.

We figured we'd never see Singapore Stan again—but, of course, we politely invited him to join us in the Caribbean for a visit. About a year later, he Skyped us in Grenada and said, "I'm ready."

"... ready?" I asked.

"Yes," he said. "To visit."

"Oh," I said reflexively, "Now is not a good time."

Two monkeys monkeying around while Stanley grabs the shot

Carolyn gets Stanley high ...

And it wasn't. We'd soon be working our way northward up the Lesser Antilles and we were in the middle of a major publishing project.

His face dropped. He looked sad.

"I really need a break from China," he confessed—the desperation plain in his voice. "The noise, the pollution—it is getting to me."

"Actually," I said, totally surprising myself, "I was just kidding. Now is a perfect time, Stanley. Give us a flight number, date, and time—and prepare yourself for the most incredible week ever!"

"Three months?" Stanley asked softly as Carolyn blanched.

"Let's leave it open-ended, shall we?" I said. "We sail to no one's schedule."

Now to say Stanley was a perfect guest is to make an understatement. He was small in stature and brought only one small soft bag. We barely knew he was compactly inhabiting the forecabin. He carefully watched us perform our daily duties and soon was doing them all: singlehandedly hoisting the dinghy up on the davits, moving the solar lamps to be recharged, and neatening up the entire boat throughout the day.

Once a week he dove over the side and polished the prop and removed every single barnacle attempting to cling to our hull. If we needed food ashore, we gave him a grocery list. Any job I started on the boat—helpful Stanley was there within minutes, handing me tools and doing much of the heavy lifting.

Best of all he loved to sail—even demanding to be woken up so he wouldn't miss any of the squalls. His love of sailing was almost as great as my own. He could not get enough of the wind, and sea, and sun—and at night he marveled at the billions of stars.

"I didn't know they were actually there," he whispered to me. "Not really. Why, we can see the Milky Way!"

Carolyn and I were able to appreciate our watery world anew through his fresh eyes. She particularly liked the fact that Stanley would have the cockpit table folded down, beautifully set, and lit perfectly every evening—and then take it apart almost instantly, almost soundlessly.

"He's like a ninja," she giggled to me.

Yes, Stanley was amazing.

Of course, we had to continue working as per usual. In order to afford our globe-trotting lifestyle, we both work 20 hours a week. Self-discipline is key. We can't drop the ball. And, one of the reasons we didn't want anyone to visit right now was because we were coming out with a new book entitled Cruising Boat Basics. And I had to focus on the illustrations—as ill-suited as I am for the task.

"Can I try?" asked Stanley when I happened to drop a not-good-enough illustration on the cabin sole. It turned out that Stanley is a graphic artist as well as legal scholar, pastry chef, and fitness freak.

By the time his illustration was half done, I knew I was out of a job.

Grenada is blessed with rainbows-- and Stanley marveled at each one

Stan did all the illustrations for our new book, its complete front-and-back cover, and even a poster to promote its publication.

Carolyn and I are in continuous need of photos to accompany our Cruising World stories. We constantly attempt to take photos of ourselves under sail. But it is difficult to set a timer and get us both in the same shot. Hooray, Stan was a seasoned photographer as well. Thus, as we sailed and trimmed and reefed, Stan recorded it all with one of our three DSLRs around his neck.

A month flew by—and instead of impatiently awaiting the day of his departure, I began to dread the thought of Stanley leaving. Not only was everyone in Grenada in love with Mister Polite, but the fishermen of Carriacou and the model carvers of Bequia as well.

And, not only was Stanley into every aspect of sailing, he was into exercising as well. During his time in the Singapore army, he focused on physical fitness. We were soon swimming long distances together—as well as mountain hiking every afternoon we weren't at sea.

I hadn't felt this limber and strong in years!

There was one area, however, where I felt Stanley was lacking—and that is in street smarts. He grew up in Singapore—perhaps the most law-abiding, most polite, most civilized place in the world. In many ways, Singapore is heaven. In the two years I lived there, I not only saw no violence—I never even heard anyone raise their voice. "That which angers me, conquers me," is a local saying—and Singaporeans never allow others to get under their skin. They carry their bliss inside.

I wanted to learn this Oriental serenity they're imbued with—but I also wanted Stanley to learn that Singapore is the anomaly, not the rule.

Stanley had not only never been in a street fight, he'd never even seen one. Oh, as a Chicagoan, how I wished that was true in my case.

More time slid by—I haven't had so much manly-man fun in years. And, before we'd go ashore on each island on our northward journey up the Lesser Antilles, I'd tell Stanley some of the wonderful experiences we'd had there over the decades. After all, we started cruising the eastern Caribbean in the 1970s. But when Stanley realized we were going to skip St. Barths, he looked dejected because he'd heard so many thrilling stories about Gustavia.

I looked at him. I saw a young Asian man—but I also saw family. I wanted to please him, just as he wanted to please me. Life is too short to resist such benevolent urges. He had become more than a human being—he was crew. Only half a dozen folks fit into this select group.

"Okay," I said, and smiled as I moved toward the sheet winches, "let's harden up a bit. St. Barths it is!"

Editor's Note: This is part one of a two-part story. In part two, Stanley and the Goodlander's sail into serious trouble in St. Barth.

Cap'n Fatty Goodlander and his wife Carolyn are currently preparing for their fourth circumnavigation. Fatty is the author of numerous marine books. His latest, Cruising Boat Basics, is out now. Visit: fattygoodlander.com

SAILING WITH CHARLIE: THE GOOD, THE BAD AND THE UGLY

SAILING HUMOR BY JULIAN PUTLEY
GRAPHICS BY ANOUK SYLVESTRE

With much of the Northern Leewards still suffering from the devastating effects of the horrendous storms of August and September 2017 the events bring to mind the pirate days of yore. How villainous pirates plundered unarmed seafarers and helpless civilians; how religious Quakers started efforts to emancipate subjugated slaves and how murderous and greedy Spanish opportunists slaughtered indigenous populations in their quest for gold in return for the gift of Catholicism.

Recently Charlie was asked, "How did pirates originate?" The answer is simple – sailors were laid off from naval ships when wars ended - they had to survive - but how? Some became beachcombers in tropical climes, but there's only so much conch you can eat; others became pirates attacking ships of previously hostile nations, but rum, the sword, the cannon all took their toll. Still, it was a life of freedom on the high seas and easy booty was often wasted on easy booty, as it were. "A short life and a merry one," was the oft quoted mantra. Adventure, booze and women were the rewards for avenging the atrocities of Spain, who claimed the New World for itself with the exclusion of everyone else. If you've seen the instruments of torture in the museum in Cartagena, Columbia, designed for those guilty of heresy you'll realize the Spaniards of the day were not nice people.

The parallels of the effects of devastating storms have similar results. Normal life is turned upside down. The effects of no jobs and no income leads to increased criminal activity – desperate times see desperate responses. Looting became rampant after the storms with shops and their contents laid bare and within easy reach – gangs of modern day pirates, machetes in hand, roamed the streets with impunity. Price gouging was evident in shops and restaurants and six months after the catastrophe many islands have only limited electricity.

On the other hand the Quakers of the day were the counter balance to the existing evil. Men who saw that slavery was an abomination and took steps to eradicate it decades before emancipation. It was all about the first baby steps to healing a terrible injustice.

If you've seen the instruments of torture in the museum in Cartagena, Columbia, designed for those guilty of heresy you'll realize the Spaniards of the day were not nice people.

Now, in the BVI and other storm-ravaged islands, there are organizations, volunteers and genuine lovers of paradise that are leading in rebuilding efforts. There are those in the public eye and many unsung heroes. A modern day army of folk who feel the need to help the suffering and perhaps to 'give back' for past times spent enjoying Caribbean island life.

Karma is a powerful force, a force that cannot be denied. To give to worthy causes creates a certain satisfaction just as greed or selfishness has detrimental consequences... OK! Enough of philosophizing. But if you see a man in a wig and black-rimmed hat – as on the Scotts Porridge Oats box – he's likely to be doing or contemplating good works. Offer him a tot of rum and he'll likely decline it, being of a temperate nature, but Charlie won't.

Cheers to the continuing recovery.

Julian Putley is the author of 'The Drinking Man's Guide to the BVI', 'Sunfun Calypso', and 'Sunfun Gospel'.

RACING CIRCUIT BY SUE PELLING

CQS on her way to breaking the 100ft and under record and Absolute Monohull record

Squally winds reaching 30kts from the northeast made for magical sleigh-ride, record-breaking conditions in the 82nd Mount Gay Round Barbados Race.

While lively conditions and big seas proved too much for many of the 34 entries in the 60nm sprint around Barbados, for others it couldn't have been more thrilling. In total seven records were smashed – the largest ever number of records broken in the history of the event.

One of the biggest heroes of the day was Trevor Hunte, the local adrenaline junkie who, on his Starboard Phantom Batwing 377 windsurfer, destroyed his own record set in 2016 by just over four minutes with a time of 5h 30m 46s.

As he arrived on the beach at the Barbados Cruising Club to crowds of well-wishers, an elated and exhausted Hunte confessed it was the most emotional and difficult sail of his life, and that he was just so happy to be back in one piece. "You can't train for a sail like that. North point was incredibly dangerous with swells of easily three meters. It was an incredible and difficult challenge. At East Point the waves finally got me. They were huge and I got bombed off a couple of times and as I fell I cut my toe in the metal mast-foot track. If that hadn't happened I would have been here ten minutes earlier."

Arguably the most notable result of the day with a finish time of 4h 13m 37s was CQS, the 100ft multi-winged supermaxi from Australia skippered by Ludde Ingvald that not only broke

Pata Negra from the UK broke the 50ft and under record

Whistler on her way to taking the CSA record

the Absolute Monohull record but also established the 100ft and under record.

As CQS crossed the line, it didn't take long for her and her super-tuned crew to power up, weave their way through the fleet and prepare for the extreme conditions and big seas at North Point. Ingval, a former round the world yachtsman, world champion and record holder, commenting after the race, said: "We are delighted because that is what we came here for. I felt we should have been a bit quicker but we are happy nevertheless. It was wild out there and we had 30+knts of wind on the nose going round the north-west/north-east point but the boat performed well recording 24-25kts of boat speed at times offwind."

Among the young sailors taking part was Jason Tindale (27) in College Funds. He and his team from the Barbados Yacht Club again demonstrated their skill by sailing a tactically sound race. Having established the J/24 record in 2015 and bettered their time in 2016, they did it again with a time of 8h 18m 9s.

Commenting on his epic sail, Tindale said: "It was, without doubt, the worst conditions I have ever seen at North Point. We had squalls of 30+kts with gusts but we had no option other than to carry on."

The 50ft and under record went to the two-year old British custom-built Marc Lombard 46 IRC cruiser/racer, Pata Negra, owned and skippered by Giles Redpath with a time of 6h 19m 53s. Redpath and his team of mainly locals, some never having sailed before, did exceptionally well given the extreme conditions.

Having conquered the challenging conditions at North Point, Pata Negra was making 20kts of boat speed at times in what Redpath described as 'sleigh ride' conditions.

Sailing such a challenging race with a crew is tough enough but to race it alone is a huge feat. Single-hander Andreas Berg from Germany sailed an impressive race and managed to break the record he set in 2017 in his Dufour 44 Luna. This highly focused sailor prepared well and used his previous experience to improve his overall record time by just over 10 minutes with a time of 7h 57m 19s.

Conviction, the local Botin Carkeek-designed TP52 with David Staples at the helm sailed a great race and broke the 60ft and under record by just over three minutes. Mention must also be made of the consistently fast local team on the J/105 Whistler. Fresh from her CSA Racing Coastal Series overall win Whistler, with Peter Lewis on the helm, took the CSA record with a time of 6h 11m 40s.

The extreme conditions were far from ideal for the four foiling kitesurfers. However, Kevin Talma persevered and was the only one who managed to complete the course and establish the Foiling Kitesurfer record with a time of 5h 42m 33s.

The Classic fleet, including The Blue Peter, Mat Barker's Alfred Mylne 65, Ruth, a local schooner, and a couple of working Brigantines – Tres Hombres and Fryderyk Chopin, glided gracefully up the west coast but the conditions took their toll and none managed to complete the course.

VIDEO GAMES AND SAILING

FAMILY CRUISING BY ERIC NEUMAN

Setting up computers often results in a chaotic mess of cables, it's even worse while underway

In the throes of nautical ennui, some turn to books to pass the time, others to movies, and others to video games. Once dominated by the younger generation but now demographically diverse, this article looks at the trials and tribulations of playing video games while underway.

Max (12) and Kyle Bethke (16), the sons of their game developer father Erik, have had plenty of experience with onboard video games. Max is interested in coding and plans to make games of his own someday, a desire that the difficulty of playing them on a boat clearly has not diminished. The brothers have been full-time liveaboards for almost two years and have sailed with their father on the family's 45ft Lagoon catamaran, Ad Astra, to Europe and several island countries. They are fans of first-person shooters (primarily Counter-Strike: Global Offensive) which they play on their Macbooks, as well as mobile apps. However, playing such games online has proven to be difficult whilst offshore due to the relative scarcity of reliable Wi-Fi.

Aran Rhodes, another teenage cruiser and a connoisseur of narrative-driven single-player games, is no stranger to Internet starvation either. "In the States, while we prepared the boat, our marina Internet was fairly strong, and could support online play through the use of a Wi-Fi booster. But later on, online play became impossible due to lack of reliable Internet," says Rhodes. Lack of Wi-Fi is an inherent issue for any online player choosing to sail long distances on the Internet-less ocean. However, there are workarounds for just this type of situation, as we are about to discover.

Although the Bethkes enjoy first-person shooters, their respective tastes in gaming diverge from there, with Max preferring real-time strategy games and Kyle gravitating towards mobile games. Their favorite mobile titles don't require a Wi-Fi signal.

"Nowadays I find myself usually playing app games on my iPhone such as Clash Royale, Infinity Blade 3 and Last Day on Earth," says Kyle. He adds, "Getting cell service is a much easier task, and playing those games still gives me the player-vs-player rush I enjoy,"

Max says he is able to play games underway when Steam (a popular PC gaming service) has an offline mode.

The Bethkes use an inverter to provide power whenever necessary, without which their computers only last a relatively short time before needing to charge.

Aran Rhodes noted similar problems. "Any game that needed connection to play was only really usable if you were staying in a marina with a private connection," he said, Powering their electronic devices on Ad Astra has never been a problem thanks to a massive solar array that keeps the family reasonably self-sufficient offshore.

Both Kyle and Max, however, mentioned seasickness as being a bigger issue than anything related to gaming or electricity. Aran likewise has minor issues with the motion of his family's 50-foot Beneteau Cyclades, YaRiKa.

In addition, not all online games are created equal and some, according to Kyle, are more reliant on having a good connection than others. "Games like World of Warcraft don't take as much internet connection and are much more forgiving than say Counter-Strike: Global Offensive in which lagging a bit could lose you the round."

Max noted that setting up game consoles is quite difficult to do on a boat due to the fact that they are usually quite bulky and difficult to carry around, so he didn't go to the trouble of bringing any onboard. He didn't mention handheld systems such as the Nintendo Switch (the gaming giant's most recent system, which can be used as both a home console and a handheld), but it is worth noting the practicality of using them as an alternative to consoles while underway.

Aran, on the other hand, has had substantial experience in playing consoles on his travels and preferred them to computer-based games on his trip through the Caribbean Windward Islands.

"In regards to setting up any sort of PC on the boat, it's pretty difficult. For the entire duration of the trip, I had a PlayStation 3 that I was playing games on, but near the end I bought a gaming laptop made by MSI, and could only ever play when the generator was running. Otherwise, the outlets lacked the right power to play comfortably," he says. According to Aran, the PlayStation 3 has a safety mechanism that allows it to circumvent power 'flickering' by staying on for a few extra seconds if such an event occurs.

With technology progressing at a rapid pace, video games become ever more accessible, even at sea. No longer are lovers of both sailing and gaming forced to choose one or the other, both can exist in harmony.

Eric Neuman is a 21-year-old freelance journalist who has a passion for video games and hopes to one day have a career in the gaming industry.

ALL AT SEA PROFILE: ANTIGUA'S REGATTA STALWART KATHY LAMMERS SAYS GOOD-BYE TO THE CARIBBEAN

SAILORS IN THE NEWS BY CAROL M. BAREUTHER

An offer that she couldn't refuse lured one of Caribbean sailing's most dynamic movers and shakers north to her native Canada in January. However, that doesn't mean Antigua & Barbuda's Kathy Lammers is leaving the marine industry. Instead, she has traded a quartet of hats – chairman of the Regatta Organizing Committee (ROC) for Antigua Sailing Week (ASW), director of the Antigua & Barbuda Marine Association (ABMA), president of the Caribbean Sailing Association (CSA), and treasurer of the Antigua and Barbuda Sailing Association (ABSA) to manage a marina on Lake Ontario. The good news is the impressive accomplishments and industry advancements that Lammers has left in her wake and the fact her new position enables her to return to the Caribbean each winter.

"My first sailing experiences started when visiting my ex-laws on their boat in the Caribbean," says Lammers, a Toronto, Ontario-native. "We did several trips up and down the islands, but Antigua was always our base. One day my husband and I went home to Canada after a wonderful time in the Caribbean, looked at our lovely house and all our belongings and said 'who needs this? Let's sell it all and buy a sailboat and go enjoy life in the Caribbean.' So that's what we did."

Lammers settled in Jolly Harbor in 1995 and soon became part of the community. Though she didn't then know much about racing, she joined now-husband Hans Lammers' crew when Lammers was short-handed for a local race and soon became a regular crew member at regattas throughout the Caribbean. Lammers' keen attention to detail earned her the position of handling the team's technicalities, such as the racing rules, sailing instruction and courses. These skills and a good understanding of racing developed over the years and led to her many marine organizational involvements, including ASW in 2010.

"Regatta numbers had been declining, so I was asked to assist on the race side. It was when ASW's entire organizational structure changed drastically and a new ROC was formed," explains Lammers, who adds that like many Caribbean regattas, money and making sure everyone involved was pleased were chief challenges. "There were so many things we would like to have done but funding was always an issue. In terms of happiness, I tried to focus mainly on the sailors. However, there was no getting away from the obligations we had to everyone else as well because ASW is one of Antigua's biggest national events."

ASW involvement led to Lammers' directorship on the ABMA board. Here, business-wise assistance such as updating corporate records and annual returns, heightening environmental consciousness, creating a three-year calendar of marine-related events and focusing on marketing Antigua's marine industry were contributions during her 2013 to 2016 tenure.

Similarly, ASW led to Lammers' association with the CSA, originally through the annual Regatta Organizers' Conference. Then, she joined the board as Secretary/Treasurer, helped facilitate the organization's incorporation as a non-profit; developed new by-laws that created several new committees to distribute the workload with former CSA president Peter Holmberg, and then became president in 2015.

"September's storms were devastating to several islands and definitely had an impact on their yachting industries and regattas. However, the outpouring of support for those islands from sailors around the world has been tremendous. All the major regattas in damaged islands are proceeding as planned for 2018, although some will have a different look or feel to them," says Lammers. "As for racing sailors, they like the islands that have good services, so repairs can be done before, after and mid-regatta if necessary; they want good places to eat and drink and they want to experience some of the Caribbean parties of which the islands are famous. At the end of the day, it's good quality racing that will keep them coming back."

Lammers will be back too.

"The good thing about my new job is that I will have January and February off every year, so we'll once again be able to sail the Caribbean for a couple of months annually – something we haven't been able to do for many years."

THE HULL STORY

MOTORBOATS BY CAPT. JEFF WERNER

Planing hull

For many prospective powerboat owners purchasing a new boat requires a visit to a nearby boat show. At an 'in water' show, boats are eye catching at the dock and creature comforts down below are considered its top selling points. One can easily buy a boat on the spot without a haulout and never once seeing its hull. However, it's the hull shape of a powerboat that will determine the boat's performance when the throttle is pushed forward.

The first decision to be made before buying a boat is how it will be used: weekend cruising, fishing, water sports, go fast and passage making are some popular options. The final choice will dictate the best hull shape for a monohull.

Hull shapes can be visualized by the body plan drawn by a naval architect. A body plan is a cross section drawing that depicts the stern and the bow sections of a vessel in one composite drawing. By convention, the sections forward of amidships are drawn on the right side, and the sections aft of amidships are drawn on the left side.

PLANING HULL

The ability of a boat to skim fast across the surface of the water is an apt description of a typical planning hull. Above a certain speed, hydrodynamic forces lift the forward portion of the hull out of the water. V-shaped hulls, whether shallow or deep, combined with a flatter underwater section aft are signatures of planing hulls. Lifting strakes help ease the boat onto the plane and hard chines assist in directional stability, particularly in high speed turns.

Types of boats that utilize planing hulls include RIBs (Rigid Inflatable Boats), waterski boats, runabouts, center consoles, express cruisers, picnic boats and sport fisherman. Small flat bottom planing boats such as skiffs are excellent for fishing in protected waters.

DISPLACEMENT HULL

In cross section, this rounded hull exhibits the opposite characteristics of a planing hull. A soft turn of the bilge and a full shape from bow to stern keep the boat buoyant for its full length while underway. Rather than lifting above the water, it pushes water out of the way when in motion. The hull speed of a slow moving displacement vessel is a function of its load waterline (LWL). Specifically, 1.34 times the square root of LWL. That means a boat with a 36ft LWL has a maximum hull speed of eight knots. The rounded hull shape also makes a displacement hull seaworthy, but inclined to roll in beam seas. Recreational trawlers are prime examples of displacement hulls.

SEMI-DISPLACEMENT HULL

Marrying the bow section of a displacement hull to the stern section of a planing hull gives a rough approximation of a semi-displacement hull. The design goal of a semi-displacement hull is to keep the boat's weight supported by buoyancy at slower speeds but allow it to exceed the hull speed of a similarly sized displacement vessel. A flatter stern section provides the needed lift to increase the boat's top speed by raising the forward section higher in the water. Typical top speeds are 10 to 20 knots. However to gain this moderate increase in speed, fuel consumption increases dramatically. The more rounded hull shape forward also allows for greater capacity of tankage and accommodations, but with an associated weight increase.

Classic wooden motor yachts, such as Trumpy houseboats utilized this hull shape. Today, there are a wide range of popular yachts in the 40 to 70ft range that use semi-displacement hulls. Even large luxury yachts, in the 130 to 160ft range, use this design to reach speeds between 25 and 30 knots.

Cathedral hull on a small Boston Whaler

CATHEDRAL HULL

Although reminiscent of a trimaran, the cathedral hull is a type of monohull. The forward section has a V-shaped center hull flanked by sponsons that extend toward the bow. Unlike a trimaran, there is little or no space between the hull and sponsons. The V-shape flattens out toward the stern to produce a scow shape allowing the boat to plane easily. The Boston Whaler popularized this design 50 years ago. While this open deck design is very stable and has a good carrying capacity, it offers a hard ride in choppy seas. Today, cathedral hulls remain popular. They are perfect for fishing, water sports and day cruising.

Purchasing a powerboat is a series of compromises, but selecting the proper hull shape is the foundation on which the rest of the boat is built.

WHAT TO LOOK FOR IF BUYING A HURRICANE DAMAGED BOAT

MARINE MARKET BY CAROL M. BAREUTHER

There's an old saying that one man's trash is another man's treasure. This may apply to those looking for a deal among northern Caribbean yachts ravaged by Hurricanes Irma and Maria in September 2017. There certainly was a lot of devastation. Some estimates place damage in hard-hit islands like the British Virgin Islands at over 2000 vessels, including many of the sailboats in the charter fleets. What is crucial, according to island-based marine surveyors working in these hard-hit areas, is to do your homework before potentially buying one of these vessels.

TYPES OF DAMAGE

"Of damages observed in the hundreds of boats we surveyed in the BVI, dismasting was the most common followed by cases of hull penetrations and extensive damage to railings, bimini and dodger frames and arch systems," explains Todd Duff, a BVI-based marine surveyor.

In St. Maarten, about 95 percent of marina-based vessels were destroyed, according to Garth Steyn, marine surveyor and owner of the St. Maarten Sailing School, based at the

"The storms were so strong and the damages so great that many vessels are really beyond repair for a reasonable cost, even if the buyer was to do all the work ..."

Simpson Bay Resort. In addition, "directly after the hurricane there were a lot of hiccups in the salvage operations. So, some of the boats spent a fair amount of time either partially submerged or completely sunk. Damage to these vessels is, in my opinion, compounded. There were deals if you were in the right place at the right time."

WHAT TO LOOK FOR

Buying a salvaged or a hurricane damaged vessel is something that people consider when looking for bargains, says Jose Menoyo, surveyor at Sea Services, in San Juan, Puerto Rico. "Generally, if it is a salvage, it will have some damage. These boats are a total loss to the insurance companies since the costs of repairs are higher than the insured value."

When a boat is deemed a total loss, it will be no small feat to bring back to fully serviceable condition, according to the BVI's Duff. "Sometimes the damages far outweigh a boat's potential value when repaired, if you consider the cost of the repairs and the inevitable loss of value compared to a boat that has not been wrecked."

There are also the boats that are deemed constructive total losses (CTL).

"This is mainly seen in older boats where the insured value is not that high. For example, a Tiara 35 (motorboat) sustained minor damages to the hull, water intrusion to the cabin, outriggers and other damages. The vessel was insured for $40,000 and the repairs were almost as high as the insured value. For the insurance, that will be a CTL. Usually the owner collects the complete insurance and has the first option to keep the boat. If not, then the insurance company will sell the boat to the public usually for a very attractive price. There may be cases where you hit the jackpot and get a $1,200,000 yacht for a fraction of the price and in the end not spend much in putting the vessel back in order," says Sea Services' Menoyo.

'Recycling' some vessels that were CTLs to willing buyers enabled these buyers to get the 'wrecks' for a song, says Captain William Howe, owner of Howe Marine Surveys, in St. Thomas, U.S. Virgin Islands. However, "The storms were so strong and the damages so great that many vessels are really beyond repair for a reasonable cost, even if the buyer was to do all the work. For example, one 60ft excursion power vessel that I surveyed looked good above the waterline, but the keel had been punched up into the hull, essentially breaking the back of the vessel and planting the vessel on the shallow reef. It is too expensive to repair the vessel."

Yet if one has the skills, ingenuity and desire, it is possible in some cases to undertake repairs on a boat and end up with a vessel that you might not have been able to afford to own in an undamaged state, according to the BVI's Duff. "Buyer beware for sure because I cannot tell you how many times I have seen people buy a boat that needs extensive work and the jobs just never get completed, or they get done incorrectly which renders the boat unusable or at least destroys its resale value."

In evaluating a DIY project on a hurricane impaired boat, consider how the craft was damaged.

"If the vessel was underwater for a period, then in such cases you must consider factors such as: marina fees, contractors, engines, generators electrical equipment, wiring, electronics, carpets, structural damages and the list continues with any hidden damages found during repairs. Then, start doing a rough estimate of all the repairs required to make the vessel seaworthy for a better perspective of the actual costs of repairs," says Sea Service's Menoyo. "If the vessel is laying sideways on land, it is a different story because you don't have the water damages. Oftentimes there is minimal or no structural damage and the damages that do exist are purely cosmetic. These types of damaged boats are a better bargain since you don't have the sunken factor in the formula."

BOTTOM LINE

Always remember that at the end of the day the history of the vessel won't change if the boat sank or if it was a salvage boat, says Menoyo. "If you have two similar vessels for sale at a similar value, but one is hurricane salvage ... That will give you some thinking and investigating to do."

SHARK CONSERVATION

Caribbean reef sharks
(Carcharhinus perezii)

An international team of researchers studying globally declining shark populations report that they used carbon isotopes as biochemical markers in shark muscle tissue to identify where in the oceans the mobile predators have been feeding, in the hope that such analyses provide a useful tool for conservation.*

Michelle Staudinger, an adjunct faculty researcher at the University of Massachusetts Amherst, worked with her former environmental conservation department colleagues Amy Teffer and Francis Juanes, now at the University of Victoria, Canada, and lead author Christopher Bird at the University of Southampton, U.K. With an international research team representing 73 scientists from 21 countries, they show that shelf-dwelling sharks forage in a range of different coastal food webs, while deeper ocean sharks seem to get most of their food from specific areas of colder water in both the Northern and Southern hemispheres.

As Bird explains, "We were able to show that sharks living close to land and those that live in the open ocean have very different ways of feeding." He adds that knowing which parts of the world's oceans are important shark feeding areas may help conservationists to design more effective ways to protect declining populations. He says there are over 500 shark species identified around the world but scientists still know little about their habits and behavior, particularly as related to feeding and movement.

Staudinger, who contributed expertise in large pelagic predator foraging ecology to this research, says, "It's been exciting to be a part of this collaborative effort and have data that we collected in regional waters off Cape Cod and the islands of Massachusetts contribute to a global understanding of how sharks move and feed."

Teffner and Staudinger published a paper in 2014, when Teffner was completing her master's degree with Juanes as her advisor, providing results from a broader sampling program led by Staudinger for sharks, tuna, dolphinfish, billfish and marine mammals from waters off New England down to South Carolina. It was this work, on large pelagic fish foraging ecology and transfer of mercury up the food chain that caught Bird's attention at the University of Southampton and led to the UMass Amherst researchers joining his team.

For the current work, the research team used biochemical markers in muscle tissues from 5,394 sharks from 114 species to compare original sites of primary production, which vary across coastal, open ocean and deep-sea food-webs of the world's oceans. Bird says, "If an animal feeds in the same place where it was caught, the carbon isotope signals in the shark and phytoplankton will match. However, if the shark has moved between feeding and where it was caught, then the signals will be different."

Marine ecologist and senior author Clive Trueman, also at the University of Southampton, says results of this study "have important implications for conservation. Globally, sharks are not doing well. Many shark populations have declined in the last few decades, particularly in the wide-ranging oceanic sharks that are targeted by fishing boats and caught accidentally in tuna fisheries as 'by-catch'. Governments are now creating large marine protected areas around the globe, which help to reduce fishing, but most of these protected areas are in tropical waters, and may not provide effective protection for oceanic sharks."

One exception, Staudinger notes, in regional waters off New England is the Northeast Canyons and Seamounts, which was designated as the first Marine National Monument in the Atlantic Ocean in 2016. Ongoing work by Staudinger and her colleagues seeks to describe the community structure and diversity of prey species in this area to provide additional information on what resources are needed to conserve sharks and other large pelagic fauna.

Overall, Bird and colleagues suggest that "global-scale compilations of stable isotope data combined with biogeochemical modelling generate hypotheses regarding animal behaviors that can be tested with other methodological approaches."

2018 CARIBBEAN SPORT FISHING TOURNAMENT PREVIEW

COMPILED BY CAROL M. BAREUTHER

There's no place better to sport fish than in the waters of the Caribbean Sea and those of the Atlantic Ocean that border the region's many islands. New tournaments and new dates mark some of the 'What's New' in the 2018 tournament season. In addition, hurricane damage last September has delayed organizers setting dates for some events or deciding if the event will happen this year. For the latest information, check www.allatsea.net/events/category/fishing-tournament. In the meantime, here is a sampling of what's on where and when ...

MARCH 22-25

DOM (Di Ole Marina) Port Antonio Marina Spring Tournament, Jamaica

"We have dropped the 'Calcutta Cash' prize concept for trophies to be awarded based on billfish release points when confirmed by photos," says Dr. Ron DuQuesnay, organizer and secretary of the host of Jamaica's Sir Henry Morgan Angling Association Ltd. APRIL 3-7

Barbados Game Fishing Association (BGFA) International Tournament

There's no layday this year. "Three days of fishing in a row makes it possible to finish the tournament on a Friday and have a big party that night at the Port St. Charles Yacht Club," says organizer Josh Delmas. Special remembrances will be held for two BGFA members, Laurence Worrell and Peter Lewis, who ran the event in past years. barbadosgamefishing.com

APRIL 18-21

Casa de Campo International Blue Marlin Classic, Dominican Republic

Nicknamed the 'Reel' March Madness, the new dates correspond to the heart of the Dominican Republic's blue marlin season. "Let's see if this year we can beat the tournament record of 256 blue marlin released, which we set in the 1999 Shootout when it was held in La Guairá, Venezuela," invites director Rick Alvarez. Prizes range between $100,000 to $150,000 in cash, plus additional sponsor luxury prizes. Charter vessels available. intlbillfishtours.com

Some 20 boats and over 80 anglers are expected to fish this event out of Charlottesville, in one of two divisions: local and international. "Our event is the only one in the southern Caribbean where a Grander (1,000-pounds-plus blue marlin) has been brought to the scale," says organizer Della De Silva. The Shootout (Production Vs. Custom), Abaco

The entry list for this second leg of the Abaco Diamond Series reads like a 'Who's Who' on today's billfish tournament circuit. "We expect the Shootout to be sold out this year, with the best of the best along with a dozen of the custom boat builders attending," says organizer Capt. Skip Smith. Spotlight: TOP REFIT & HURRICANE STORAGE BOATYARDS Experience matters ...

This is the perfect time to Refit, Upgrade, Fix or simply place your beloved boat into hibernation for the hurricane season. Who are you going to trust to take care of your prized possession?

Take a moment ... The selection of a boatyard to meet your needs and exceed your expectations can be a daunting challenge.

We're making the choice easy for you. Here's a spotlight on several of the Top Boatyards that specialize in Refit and Hurricane Storage.

This special section will provide an inside look at their capabilities and help you create a relationship to get the job done.

We welcome recommendations for yards to include in next year's edition!

BOBBY'S MEGAYARD

SINT MAARTEN

The Megayard in Sint Maarten has been open now for 5 years and is located in Cole Bay across the lagoon from Simpson Bay Yacht Club. This branch has 2 Travelifts: a 150 metric ton (165 US ton) machine that can haul vessels up to 33 feet wide. And a second machine of 75 tons for the smaller sail boats. This machine can accommodate a 19 foot wide vessel.

This Yard has 24 hour security guard and a 3 meter security wall surrounding the yard with night security lighting. In near proximity to the yard, all within walking distance are a full array of the best vendors of marine parts and equipment in the Caribbean. In addition to this, there is a full selection of vendors supplying all the services one might need performed from: sail makers to rigging, welding, mechanical, refrigeration and electrical all within easy walking distance of the Megayard.

There is a second location of the Megayard alongside the Airport. This Yard has a 50 ton Travelift for the smaller vessels. Here we accommodate the vessels that wish to stay out for a long term. This yard has a security fence and lighting but there is no security guard on duty.

At both the facilities professional assistance is available to solve your boating problems and we have an array of subcontractors that can assist with any work needed to be performed from welding to electrical. The Megayard is experienced at doing your bottom painting and as we use environmentally friendly dustless sanders, we do all work below the waterline without any dust. We offer very competitive pricing and estimates are available upon request for the sanding and painting of the bottom. As we here in Sint Maarten are in the hurricane belt, we of course offer hurricane storage. The Hurricane Season is between the months of June to November. This is a very popular service and early booking is essential. The boats will be chocked and cross braced for security with the masts of keel boats removed as a precaution. Many owners take the opportunity to inspect both rigging and mast at this time. Catamarans are offered hurricane concrete hold down blocks and are chocked both forward and aft to prevent any movement during a storm. We at the Megayard feel that we will offer you our customer a satisfying and professional stay in our yard and we look forward to being of service to you.

CLARKES COURT BOATYARD & MARINA

ST. GEORGE, GRENADA, W.I.

At Clarkes Court Boatyard & Marina our core business is the hauling, storing and launching of vessels up to 242ton and or 37ft. wide (inside dock dimension) with max draft 13ft. This is done using the most modern hauling equipment available nicknamed "The Hulk" Italian Boat Lift. For smaller vessels we have our 32t Roodberg submersible trailer that can handle vessels up to 55ft.loa, max beam 25ft. and max draft of 7ft. Also available are 20 slips for berthing. We are located furthest south of all boatyards in the Island chain (12°0'1"N 61°44'43"W), in the northwest corner of Woburn Bay on the south coast of Grenada, which has a well-marked channel from the open sea. We are 7.2km or 15mins from the MBIA airport and 13 mins from Grenada's famous beach at Grand Anse.

Here is what one client said: "The lowest common denominator for any boatyard is that they perform common and skilled tasks for the longevity and performance of expensive boats – and they do so safely and efficiently. What makes certain boatyards stand out from others, are in fact, the employees who work there. Clarkes Court Boatyard & Marina (CCBM) is such a place. For a variety of reasons it stands out as the best haul-out and maintenance facility we have ever experienced in the 10 years we've owned our catamaran. I would never be so naive as to call this 'nirvana' (as I'm not overly found of boatyards - only sailing) but this organization has its act together. Read the current reviews and walk the boatyard for yourself."

- Boatyard team repeatedly congratulated on Facebook and other social media
- Boats can be stored in cradles or stands bolted together
- All boats are strapped down to concrete blocks
- Shopping Bus services from the yard
- Courtesy Dinghy to carry and fetch within the Woburn Bay during working hours
- Chandlery, Restaurant, Laundry
- Wide mix of approved subcontractors on site such as Mechanical, Electrical, Woodwork, Composite & Superstructures, Rigging, Sail & Canvas, Fiberglass and Refrigeration
- Luxury apartments, Mobile Spa & Babysitting Service
- In case we did not mentioned it -cheerful staff!

Clarkes Court Boatyard & Marina has the lift and the yard capacity to welcome multihulls, motor yachts, sailing yachts, commercial vessels and it is the ideal place for routine maintenance, major refit projects and sandblasting.

GRENADA MARINE

IBC SHIPYARD

CASA DE CAMPO LA ROMANA, DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

ADVICE ABOUT WHAT TO DO DURING THE HURRICANE SEASON: Hurricanes are enormous cyclonic storm systems covering thousands of square miles which usually develop in the tropical or subtropical latitudes during the summer and fall. To be a hurricane, the system must be producing winds of 64 knots or more. With today's modern communication net to warn them, people have a better chance to reach safety before a hurricane hits their area. Even so, you may have little more than 24 hours advance notice to get your boat secured against the storm's full force. With today's modern communication net to warn them, people have a better chance to reach safety before a hurricane hits their area. Therefore, check the weather often.

1. Develop a detailed plan of action to secure your vessel in the marina (if permitted).

2. Owners of non-trailerable boats in wet storage have options that include the following: 1) Secure the boat in the marina berth; 2) Moor the boat in a previously identified safe area; or 3) Haul the boat to the nearest shipyard. If you are in Dominican Republic, IBC Shipyard has a hurricane plan to offer to its clients and is the only shipyard in the Caribbean with a 120 ton travel lift and with safety rings in its floor to attach the yachts in case of strong winds during the hurricane or storms.

3. Owners of boats remaining in a marina berth can take the following precautions: Double all lines. Rig crossing spring lines fore and aft. Attach lines high on pilings to allow for tidal rise or surge. Make sure lines will not slip off pilings. Inspect pilings and choose those that appear the strongest and tallest, and are installed properly.

4. Cover all lines at rough points or where lines feed through chocks to prevent chafing. Wrap with tape, rags and rubber hoses or leather. Install fenders, fender boards or tires if necessary to protect the boat from rubbing against the pier, pilings and other boats.

5. Fully charge the batteries and check to ensure their capability to run automatic bilge pumps for the duration of the storm. Consider backup batteries. Shut off all devices consuming electricity except bilge pumps, and disconnect shore power cables

6. When a hurricane is impending, and after you have made anchoring or mooring provisions, remove all portable equipment such as canvas, sails, dinghies, electronics, cushions, biminis and roller furling sails. Lash down everything you are unable to remove such as tillers, wheels and booms.

7. Maintain an inventory of both the items removed and those left on board. Items of value should be marked so that they can be readily identified. You should also consider maintaining a video or photographic record of the boat and its inventory in a secure location other than the vessel itself for future reference.

8. Consolidate all records including insurance policies, a recent photo of your vessel, boat registration, equipment inventory, and the lease agreement with the marina or storage facility. Ensure that you include the telephone numbers of appropriate authorities, such as the Dominican Coast Guard, Harbor Master, your insurance agent, and claim reporting number of your insurance carrier, and keep them on hand.

9. Do not stay aboard. Winds, during any hurricane, can exceed 100 mph and tornadoes are often associated with these storms. Above all, safeguard human life

PUERTO DEL REY MARINA

FAJARDO, PUERTO RICO

Puerto Del Rey Marina in Puerto Rico is the largest and most complete marina in the Caribbean; their first-class facilities have seen significant improvements and investment over the last 5 years. That investment, combined with its strategic location (surrounded by mangroves and mountains), helped avoid a catastrophe during Hurricanes Irma and Maria in 2017. The massive breakwater played a crucial role in saving hundreds of vessels in the water, and the steel and concrete foundations in the Hurricane Storage proved critical in saving hundreds of boats on land. Over 1,300 vessels survived the direct hit from Hurricane Maria and her 200+ mph winds while stored in Puerto del Rey. The marina was open for business just a few days after the hurricane passed. The Marina invested in a 1.5-Megawatt generator capable of running all the facilities and ensuring they are even more prepared for any future events. Call or write them today to ask about Hurricane Storage options.

The Puerto Del Rey Boat Yard is the only yard in the Caribbean with 4 travel lifts; the most powerful of which is capable of hauling out vessels up to 150 tons. There are also bull forklifts that can haul vessels up to 42' LOA and 32,000 lbs. You can rest assured that your vessel, regardless of size or service needed, can be taken in by Puerto Del Rey.

Do you need to get some work done on your boat? They have you covered. Puerto del Rey is home to 14 authorized contractors, some of them have built reputations as the best in the region. This gives you the ability to select the contractor whose skillset matches your needs and whose prices come within your budget; all this without leaving the marina! Some of the areas the contractors excel in include: propulsion systems, motor repair and mechanics, woodworking, welding and metal fabrication, electrical repair, fiberglass repair and finishing, and bottom maintenance and painting.

As if that were not enough, Puerto Del Rey offers a wide variety of amenities to their guests and boat owners. Get gas or diesel at the fuel dock. Get some work done (or some leisure done) by connecting to the free marina Wi-Fi. Take a break from the water and stay in one of their on-premise apartments (1 and 2 bedrooms available). There is also a gym, game room, jungle gym, jogging trail, concierge service, provisioning assistance, a heliport, on-site car rental service, laundry facilities, a deli-market, and the best seafood restaurant in town. Puerto Del Rey Marina is your one stop shop in the Caribbean for all your boating needs.

"Our range of services will make your visit more convenient and productive. Our excellent contractors, first rate facilities, and dedicated staff will make it an unforgettable experience. Puerto Del Rey Marina is your one stop shop in the Caribbean for all your boating needs. We are more than a marina... we are your gateway to the Caribbean."

The trio, who finished 2nd in the event for the past three years, blazed the downwind course to arrive on Sandy Cay after just two hours and fifteen minutes of paddling.

The winning team collected trophies and round trip tickets anywhere within the InterCaribbean Airlines system.

The BVI team of Brian Duff, Saski Lang and Josh Morrell easily captured 2nd place, while Team Triple Stoked from St Thomas took 3rd.

A wave from Isabelle Picard of the winning NSP Team

"It was perfect," said Isabelle Picard of the winning NSP Team. "The wind was square on our back and the sea conditions were just big enough to catch waves but not too big to knock us down."

The annual Painkiller Cup combines two races: the three-person team relay race, and a smaller 2.5-mile solo race from Sandy Cay to White Bay, Jost Van Dyke. The relay race has a twist in that each team of three people must include at least one women.

The solo race, which is also known as the Mini-Painkiller Cup, saw 35-entries and was won by visiting paddler John Sloan from Atlanta, Georgia. Second place went to Tortola paddler Lee Donovan, while Ewout France, also from Tortola, was 3rd.

Natalie Sims from Tortola was the top women finisher coming in 6th overall.

The 2018 Painkiller Cup was sponsored by InterCaribbean Airlines, HIHO, Hendo's Hideaway, The Moorings, Island Time Boat Rental and Lemon & Line.

This year's event included some community service efforts. Participants collected hurricane refuse on Sandy Cay and, following the awards ceremony, planted coconut trees on White Bay. 🌴

SAINT BARTH NEW YEAR'S EVE REGATTA

ST. BARTHÉLEMY STORY ELLEN LAMPERT-GRÉAUX
PHOTOGRAPHY ROSEMOND GRÉAUX

Lloyd Thornberg (with trophy) and crew celebrating their win in the 23rd annual New Year's Eve Regatta aboard the Gunboat 66 Phaedo

Winner in 2011 and 2015, Lloyd Thornberg once again took top honors in the Saint Barth New Year's Eve Regatta, a parade of sailboats around the island on December 31 each year.

Two hours before the staggered starts, strong rains battered the island, yet the sailors were not discouraged from setting sail. At 11am the first boat, Speedy Nemo, crossed the start line, followed by the others until the last to set off, Lloyd Thornberg's orange catamaran Gunboat 66 Phaedo at noon. This is the same beautiful boat with which Thornberg won this regatta in 2011, while in 2015 he sailed to victory with another boat, the high-speed, lime green MOD70 trimaran

ST BARTH: SAILING INTO SPRING

First up is the St Barth Bucket, a prestigious invitation-al regatta for sailboats over 100ft in length. Setting sail on March 15-18, the Bucket has close to 30 entries confirmed including three beautiful J Class boats. www.bucketregatta.com

Following The Bucket is Les Voiles de St Barth on April 8-14, with sailboats of all sizes in a variety of classes. The organizers have announced that French television personality Alessandra Sublet and American music star Jimmy Buffett are the ambassadors of the regatta this year, as both are strong supporters of the island (Buffett also served as patron of the race in 2011). www.lesvoilesdesaintbarth.com/us

The final event of the season is the arrival of the Ag2r La Mondiale, with teams of two sailors on identical 10-meter Figaro Beneteau boats racing across the Atlantic. Boats leave France April 22, and are expected to arrive in St Barth mid-May.

*Phaedo*³, which has set all kinds of speed records under Thornberg's tenure.

Under cloudy skies and winds from the east at 10 knots, with gusts up to 15 knots, the sailors didn't face too many challenges, but a boat like the 96ft German Frers Symmetry sails better with more wind, having completed this course in two hours on a previous outing, it took almost four hours this time around. Even Phaedo, which won in 2011 with a time of 2h 6m 13s, took 3h 01m 55s this time. The regatta record of 1h 32m 07s set in 2004 by the 147ft Visione still stands, and seems almost impossible to beat.

Organized by the Saint Barth Yacht Club in collaboration with the Port de Gustavia, this year's edition featured six boats of various sizes.

Results: 1st Phaedo; 2nd Maelia; 3rd Speedy Nemo; 4th Anna Christina; 5th Simple Harmony; 6th Symmetry.

Ellen Lampert-Gréaux lives in Saint Barthélemy where she is editor-in-chief of Harbour Magazine.

Congratulations Team Antigua ...
The photo says it all!

along with 31 other teams on December 14, for a 3,000-mile row across the Atlantic in the 2017 Talisker Whisky Atlantic Challenge, billed as the 'World's Toughest Row'. The bird, soaring overhead some 540 miles east of the finish line in Nelson's Dockyard, Antigua, proved a beacon of hope and encouragement for Team Antigua. With that, the four men started to pull even harder on the oars.

"We've been watching rowers land in Antigua for over 10 years, it has always sparked a curiosity among us all," says Watt, whose teammates are childhood friends who grew up together and continue to be avid water sports enthusiasts. "The first Antiguan team to participate was in the 2015 Challenge (Team Wadadli, with Dr. Nick Fuller, Archie Bailey, John Hall and Peter Smith, who finished 14th of 26 teams, yet set the record for oldest team age-wise to ever row across the Atlantic) and it brought the island together. It also raised awareness and much needed funds for the St Johns Hospice. We were all inspired by these brave men. They had one request and it was to have another Antiguan team participate in the future. Eli made a few calls as we had a sponsor of U.S. $100,000 to get a team together and the rest is history. We were all in."

The toughest part of the race for Team Antigua, says Watt, was maintaining power on the 24-foot long, six-foot wide self-righting Rannoch 45 row boat. To keep batteries charged, they had an emergency back-up system called an EFOY. Unfortunately, the unit didn't arrive from a manufacturer's servicing until the day before the race start. An error message in the unit that persisted after long hours of work by Watt and Psihoyos, necessitated the team leave this essential piece of equipment behind, leaving them at a disadvantage should they run into a low battery situation. The first five days the team used only essential electronics such as navigation lights, GPS, AIS, VHF radio, auto helm and water maker. It soon dawned on them that persistent cloud cover meant they would not get sufficient amps from their three solar panels to maintain the battery voltage. Conserving power then became the number one priority, meaning the team could not charge any devices, use navigation lights or run the GPS in the day, and some nights they had to hand steer using a compass and a glowstick to see.

The weather in this year's Challenge was unprecedented and also challenging. Strong easterly trade winds resulted in very big seas, but an extremely fast paced race. The team experienced quite a few near roll overs where massive 20-foot waves would meet and send the boat sideways and down. Luckily, this didn't cause any injuries. However, the sleep deprivation that came because of having to hand steer to conserve battery power for making water resulted in the men losing countless hours of sleep. The result was many hallucinations and vivid dreams when asleep during the two-hour row, two-hour sleep schedule the men maintained for most of the trip. In fact, one night Watt found himself having a conversation with a bulkhead hatch before his shift change over.

"Dawn on Day 30 revealed the most beautiful sight, the eastern coast line of our home, Antigua. We could see boats making their way to welcome us. It was a very surreal and moving moment to see the amount of family, friends and fans who came out to see us in," says Watt.

Team Antigua ended in second place, with a time of 30d 2h 12m, nearly five days faster than the 2016 record for a four-man team. The London, UK-based Four Oarsmen, was first and finished about 11 hours before Team Antigua.

All teams in the Challenge must have a charity in which to donate. Team Antigua chose two: a full-time managed Marine Park in the Nelson's Dockyard area, and supporting Antigua's sister island Barbuda, which was severely damaged during Hurricane Irma. The team has raised over US $110,000 to date.

"Presently, we don't have plans to participate in another Challenge," says Watt. "However, for future teams from Antigua or the Caribbean, we strongly suggest spending at least 800 to 1000 hours of training time on the water rowing the boat; learning the systems on board in great detail in order to trouble shoot problems out at sea very quickly; taking time in the gym getting your fitness in order; and knowing that the difficult part of organizing the row is the hours of emails, phone calls, meetings and fundraising it takes to manage the overall operations."

Editor's note: All At Sea congratulate TEAM ANTIGUA on their magnificent achievement.

THE CAYMAN ISLANDS: A TANTALIZING TRIO

CAYMAN ISLANDS STORY MARK STEVENS
PHOTOGRAPHY BY SHARON MATTHEWS-STEVENS

Seven Mile Beach on Grand Cayman is often voted among the world's best

We're trudging along a rock-strewn trail topping a cliff more than a hundred feet above waves crashing ashore in white foam, waves like white lace crisscrossing cobalt-colored waters further out. We meet two people who smile at us and point in the direction we're headed. "Brown boobies that way," they say.

We don't find them here in the eastern reaches of Cayman Brac but it doesn't matter: the view's spectacular, the experience is unforgettable.

Back in the car we make for Le Soleil D'or, an inn and elegant restaurant on the south coast, doing farm to table lunch, rounding out the afternoon at their beach club somewhere between a swimming pool and an alabaster swathe of sand, chatting with the other patrons.

Both other patrons.

Late in the afternoon we fly back to Grand Cayman, dining al fresco beside the waters of North Sound at Calypso Grill.

If I'd ever needed convincing about the allure of the Cayman Islands, I should consider it a done deal.

This Caribbean collection comprising Grand Cayman, Little Cayman and Cayman Brac is a tropical triumvirate.

Located northwest of Jamaica, it's got all the appeal of the Antilles but given its history as an offshore financial haven it's also incredibly sophisticated, boasting luxury accommodation and a cornucopia of culinary choices.

Add in the expected sun-kissed delights like one of the Close encounters of the marine kind at Stingray City

Visit on your yacht and overnight at Grand Cayman Yacht Club

Caribbean's best beaches and a heaping helping of history and culture and you're talking a veritable symphony of sensations.

In short, the Cayman Islands are a tantalizing trio.

UNDER THE SEA

On my first trip down here my nephew, an avid diver and expat resident from Canada, gave me an impromptu scuba lesson and we did a shore dive: a kaleidoscopic multitude of fish, a menagerie of coral. On this trip we snorkel off Rum Point, wading in waist-deep waters nudged and nuzzled by stingrays friendly as puppies.

By time we've boarded the catamaran bound for Rum Point, I decide that maybe this archipelago's best features might be discovered under the sea.

Here you experience a different dive site every day for a year without repeating yourself, the healthiest coral in the Caribbean, almost unlimited visibility, wreck dives and walls that drop six thousand feet.

Then again, maybe it's that feeling of solitude you can experience here, not only on Little Cayman and Cayman Brac, but on Grand Cayman itself.

FAR FROM THE MADDING CROWD

Rum Point: pastel-painted picnic tables, a lime-colored hut where you can buy a frosty Caybrew beer. Do lunch, stretch out in a hammock in the shade of casaurina trees fluttering like feather boas in the breeze. Try a standup paddleboard or just laze beside a rainbow-painted sign pointing to any one of a number of metropolises far removed from this hideaway.

Blowholes and Bodden Town: Driving the south coast, watch geysers reaching for the sky. Have a box lunch in a shore-side gazebo you share with only a couple of locals taking a break from their quest for the catch of the day.

On Little Cayman or Cayman Brac, you can find a beach to call your own.

Population on Little Cayman: roughly one hundred seventy.

Rum Point – Far from the madding crowd at Rum Point

No shortage of elegance in the Cayman Islands. Case in point: Kimpton Seafire Resort and Spa house at St. James Pedro. Visit the National Gallery, with its wealth of local art housed in a modern white showcase. Get a lesson in basket-weaving or rope-making at Camana Bay from a lovely lady named Marlena Anglan.

But don't just expect history here at Camana.

For Camana, just like the rest of this archipelago, offers something for everyone.

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE

Cross over to Camana Bay's 'island' where your kids can climb the jungle gym. Go shopping for jewelry, lingerie or the latest for audiophiles. Then dine and sip a cold one.

Head to West End to swim with a dolphin or bond with a sea turtle.

Learn about island horticulture and reflect pond-side while an iguana in a buttonwood tree looks down approvingly in the Queen Elizabeth II Botanical Park.

Walk a beach: seven sultry miles of sand. Toast, at day's end, one of the Caribbean's best sunsets.

Then go for dinner – for the culinary offerings here are as appealing as the sunsets.

A TANTALIZING TRIO

And there it hits me, on a patio at Calypso Grill ten feet from the shore of Morgan's Harbour. There's something for everyone in the Cayman Islands. The allures are myriad, the appeal of this trio, Grand Cayman, Little Cayman, Cayman Brac, unsurpassed.

Mark Stevens is an award-winning travel writer whose specialties include Canada, the Caribbean and boating.

KEEP IT CLEAN!

THE DISH BY CAP'N JAN ROBINSON

Our food supply has changed dramatically over the last few years. Many of us now know the benefits of 'Eating Clean', having more energy and staying well!

To get 'clean' it is important to read labels. Be aware that many food companies are giving unwanted chemicals, normal sounding names. My guide - more than three ingredients I cannot pronounce, I don't buy. I try eat it nothing white (well, except for cauliflower). You do not have to give up meat completely just crowd it out with lots of good vegetables.

I'm working on a new 'healthy' cookbook: the Ship to Shore Charter Yacht Collection. My friend Judy Peacock contributed the Easy Seaweed Wrap recipe below. Should you or any chef you know be interested in contributing to the book then I would love to hear from you. Please Email: JanRobinson340@gmail.com

EASY SEAWEED WRAPS

Prep time: 20 minutes. Serves: 4

8 Nori seaweed sheets (shiny side face down when filling)
Small bowl warm water (to dampen edges of seaweed sheet so they stick and seal easily)

FILLING:

Rice wine vinegar

1-2 tbsp peanut or cashew butter

1 small carrot grated

2 mushrooms, finely chopped

Several leaves of spinach

1 green onion, chopped

1 small beet grated

1-2 tbsp cheese

Place seaweed sheet on sushi roller and sprinkle it with Rice Wine vinegar. Spread the peanut butter at the bottom edge. Add the vegetables in layers. Add the feta cheese Roll tightly. Cut in half. Dip in sauce, eat and enjoy.

DIPPING SAUCE:

1-2 tbsp soy sauce

1 tsp rice wine vinegar

Dash of sesame oil

NOTE: You can add any vegetables you like – alfalfa sprouts, chopped cilantro, thinly sliced cucumber, radish, avocado, etc.

TIP: Moisten the edge of the Nori sheet when you finish rolling it up to help seal the roll and make it much easier for cutting in half. Nori has a shiny side and a rough side. Place the shiny side face down on your sushi board and rough side facing up. This way it seals better. Wraps are best eaten immediately.

SIMPLE BAKED SALMON

Prep time: 5 minutes. Cooking time: 10 – 15 minutes. Serves: 4

4 Salmon fillets

Fresh lemon juice

Olive oil

Minced garlic

Freshly ground salt and pepper

Garnish: Chopped parsley or dill

Preheat oven to 400°F. Place salmon fillets, in a greased baking dish, with skin side down. Pour over fresh lemon juice, olive oil, minced garlic, salt and pepper. Bake 10 - 15 minutes. Garnish with the parsley or dill.

CAULIFLOWER RICE

Prep time: 10 minutes. Cooking time: 15 minutes. Serves: 4

1 large cauliflower, cut into large chunks

2 tbsp extra Virgin Olive Oil

Salt and pepper to taste

Preheat oven to 400°F. Pulverize cauliflower in food processor and pulse until broken down into rice-size pieces. Bake on a greased cookie tray for about 15 minutes. Or ... Heat olive oil in a skillet over medium high heat; add cauliflower 'rice', salt, and pepper. Cover skillet and cook until heated through, 3 to 5 minutes. Remove lid and fluff 'rice' with a fork.

HOMEMADE FUDGE

Prep time: 10 minutes. Chilling time: about 1 hour.

Serving: one piece per person

2 tbsp liquid coconut oil

2 tbsp coconut palm sugar

2 tbsp Cocoa powder

1 tbsp whole milk

Pinch of salt

In a medium size bowl, stir together all the ingredients, except the milk. Slowly add the cold milk and stir well. Pour into a custard cup line with plastic wrap. Put into the refrigerator for 1 hour or until fudge hardens
