CAYAGO'S NEW SEABOB F9 - DRIVE A PORSCHE ON THE SEAS

Up your water toy game! The new Seabob F9 is now available. Introduced in January at the Düsseldorf International Boat Show, designers from Studio F. A. Porsche, in collaboration with the engineers at Cayago AG, have succeeded in equipping this unique watercraft with excellent driving characteristics thanks to its sleek, hydrodynamic shape. The technical performance data of the new Seabob 9 is impressive, with a thrust in the water measured in Thrust Performance of 60 TP. The Seabob F9 S boasts a Thrust Performance of 84 TP. This means this electrically-powered water sled can pull its pilots through the water at well over 12 miles per hour. The battery runtime can last up to 1 hour with sportive driving.

"The new Seabob F9 impresses with its very special driving characteristics, whether as a diving vehicle with unimagined agility in the wonderful underwater world of the Caribbean or especially as a unique surface vehicle," explains Peter Walpurgis, Cayago AG's chief executive officer. "Cruising on the water with the Seabob F9 is a special experience. The water enjoyably rushes over your whole body, thus creating a fascinating wellness experience. At just over 44 pounds, the Seabob F9 is easy to handle. Yacht crew are pleased with how easily it is to move this powerful water toy aboard yachts and when driven in the water." seabob.com

PORT NIMARA - ANGUILLA'S FIRST MARINA SET TO OPEN IN EARLY 2027

It's official! Groundbreaking on Anguilla's first marina, Port Nimara, was announced in January. Since the turn of this century, there's been talk about constructing a marina at Forest Bay, a mile or so from the island's airport, or at the salt pond behind Sandy Ground. Instead, the 118-slip marina, set to accommodate vessels up to 260-foot LOA, will be strategically set between the Cap Juluca and Altamer estate on Anguilla's southwest shore. It's a prime location, less than 10 nautical miles from Marigot, St. Martin, and only 26 to Gustavia, St. Barth's. More than a marina, the comprehensive nautical project will also be home to a 62-key five-star hotel and 18 beachfront villas, potentially expanding to 18 upland villas and 45 residences.

"Our goal is to create a world-class maritime destination that not only respects Anguilla's natural beauty, but also propels the island into a new era of economic opportunity," says David Mizrahi, managing partner of the development and chief executive officer of SF Investments, part of the SF Group, a leading international marina construction and development company based in Sweden.

Port Nimara is being developed as a joint venture with TEI Inc., a New York-based development group owned by Francis Greenburger, and Antillean Development LLC, an Anguillian-based developer under the lead of George A. Fraser.

Constructed by U.S.-based Consigli in cooperation with SF Marina, Port Nimara will feature a premium yacht club, advanced customs and immigration services, a waterfront promenade, sophisticated security systems, and comprehensive maintenance services.

Complementing the marina development, Anguilla's airport will undergo a significant expansion, including a runway extension to 7,800 feet to allow for all sizes of private jets, as well as commercial planes that can make direct flights from major destination hubs in the U.S. and a world-class VIP FBO terminal.

Port Nimara's marina is projected to open in early 2027, with the beachfront villas and hotel to follow in early 2028. portnimara.com

USAID LAUNCHES REGIONAL PROGRAM TO PROMOTE MARINE BIODIVERSITY IN THE CARIBBEAN REGION

Marine and coastal ecosystems in the Caribbean are critical for the region's local livelihoods and economic development, particularly for the tourism sector. In 2021, the travel and tourism sector contributed over $39 billion to the region's GDP. The impacts of human economic activities like pollution, waste generation, and unsustainable fishing practices threaten the health and beauty of marine and coastal ecosystems. As a result, the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) launched the USAID Caribbean Sustainable Ecosystems Activity last October. This regional program, based in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, aims to reduce threats to marine biodiversity in the region by three objectives: improved management of marine protected areas, improved solid waste management, and increased sustainability of fisheries.

This five-year program, active until January 2029, is working with local communities and the private sector to identify priority areas and blue economy initiatives to be supported across 13 countries of implementation. These countries include Antigua and Barbuda, Barbados, Dominica, Dominican Republic, Grenada, Guyana, Haiti, Jamaica, Saint Lucia, Saint Vincent and the Grenadines, Suriname, and Saint Kitts and Nevis, and Trinidad and Tobago. Examples of types of initiatives to be supported include the designation of protection zones for marine mammals and sea turtles, investments in improved solid waste management systems, and working with fishers to help them meet large-scale tourism actor procurement requirements. www.usaid.gov

MarineMax Vacations Wins Prestigious 2024 TripAdvisor Award

Kudos such as 'The newest and best-equipped fleet in the BVI,' in-house vacation planners know the destination' and 'highly trained and professional staff' are a few of the reasons why MarineMax Vacations received the 2024 Tripadvisor Travelers' Choice Award.

This Award is based on reviews and ratings from real travelers around the globe. It emphasizes outstanding hospitality and customer satisfaction. MarineMax Vacations' fleet of premium power catamarans, unparalleled support services, and commitment to sustainable tourism have made it a favorite among travelers seeking an exceptional boating experience.

"We are incredibly honored to receive the 2024 Tripadvisor Travelers' Choice Award," said Raul Bermudez, vice president of MarineMax Vacations. "This recognition is a testament to the hard work of our entire team and the trust our customers place in us to create life-changing memories. We thank our guests for their glowing reviews and ongoing support."

In 2025, Bermudez says, "We are expanding our staff with highly trained team members, adding the all-new Aquila 50 power catamaran, updating our entire dinghy fleet, and adding additional all-inclusive crewed options with captains and/or culinary chefs aboard."

Are there plans for MarineMax Vacations to expand in the Caribbean beyond its Nanny Cay Marina, Tortola, BVI location? "It is very tough to find all the amazing experiences the BVI offers anywhere else in the Caribbean. We would welcome a partnership with a local operator on other islands that may have figured out how to deliver high quality, reliable charters and offer amazing experiences, as we have in the BVI. We have not found it yet but believe somewhere they exist, waiting for us to discover," says Bermudez. www.marinemaxvacations.com

INTRODUCING THE NEW GPL-3100HC CRANKING AGM BATTERY

Get a charge out of Lifeline Batteries! The company's new cranking AGM (absorbed gas mat) battery, with the part number GPL-3100HC, delivers industry-leading capabilities.

"Although this new battery surpasses our existing 3100T in all cranking capabilities, it shares the identical case size. This is a significant benefit as there is no need to change the size of the existing battery box," says Andrew Finkelstein, sales manager at the San Dimas, California-headquartered company that manufactures batteries for the marine, RV, and military vehicle sectors. The batteries are Coast Guard-approved.

As for why its batteries are great for Caribbean boaters, Finkelstein adds, "It's the longevity that our batteries deliver despite the harsh temperatures. Those boaters who are mainly on the hook and do not charge batteries 100% often enough can still equalize or condition charge our batteries to recover lost capacity. We are the only AGM battery that can be equalized or condition charged."

Lifeline's new battery has a maximum pulse crank rating of 2150amps. The marine industry standard ratings are 68 degrees = 1580amps, 32 degrees = 1400amps, and 0 degrees = 1175amps. The 3100HC has a 100amp/hr battery and delivers an impressive 230 minutes at a 25amp draw. This battery allows boaters to significantly increase their vessels' cranking capabilities without changing battery hold dimensions. It is also a direct replacement for 31 case-size thruster and windless applications. lifelinebatteries.com

CARIBBEAN SAILING ASSOCIATION ANNOUNCES NEW MEASUREMENT APPOINTMENTS IN ANTIGUA

Welcome to Sam Masterman and John Gaillard! The Caribbean Sailing Association (CSA)

is pleased to announce the appointment of both men as new junior measurers, to support the measurement team in Antigua. The CSA has a network of measurers spanning the Caribbean. As some of the organization's experienced measurers age out, the CSA is committed to training local talent to step into these vital positions. Sandy Mair, a measurer in Antigua for more than 40 years, has been instrumental in mentoring and equipping the next generation of measurers with the training and skills needed to take on the role.

"Masterman and Gaillard will be taking on their new responsibilities in the coming months, working closely with our existing experienced measurement team in Antigua to ensure a smooth transition," says Bastien Pouthier, CSA president.

Masterman is a previous British-born superyacht captain with a degree in yacht design who now resides in Antigua and works with Woodstock Boatbuilders as a project manager. Gaillard, St. Lucian born and an Antiguan National has a degree in Aeronautical Engineering and assisted IODA as the measurement team for the Optimist Worlds and regional championships and has now advanced to big boat measuring. He has been working in the Marine Industry for 20 years.

This season, boat owners racing in the Caribbean can find the updated rules online at www.Caribbean-Sailing.com. Boats wishing to apply for measurement can do so via the online application and payment process here: www.caribbean-sailing.com/apply-for-measurement/. The CSA measurement team will promptly reach out to coordinate the necessary arrangements after receipt of the completed online application and payment.

Known also as the Grenada Work Boat Regatta, races start Le-Mans-style off Grand Anse Beach. The event recognizes the two-century-plus tradition of wooden boat building in Grenada and its sister islands of Carriacou and Petite Martinique. "For 2025, we plan to keep the time-honored sloop and catfish classes and bring back other categories too that have been lost," says Raisa Pierre, event organizer. "On shore, we will offer games, activities, and entertainment, like tug of war, corn hole, giant Connect 4, Jenga, dominoes, and more, for all ages." Workboats in Gouyave, Sateurs, and Woburn still need repairs from Hurricane Beryl damage. Pierre invites the corporate community to help, with the opportunity to brand the boat with the businesses' logos. Contact: Rcpierre16@hotmail.com, www.facebook.com/WorkboatRegatta/

On Books, Boats, and Bilge Rats

CRUISING | BY CAP'N FATTY GOODLANDER

I don't normally do book reviews—especially of 'mommy dearest' style tell-alls or books that, however benignly, attempt to shine a spotlight into the dark corners of raising a child aboard. In fact, a large part of my personal and professional life has been singing the praises of liveaboard families.

A dozen years ago, I enthusiastically penned the introduction to a book called Voyaging with Kids (A Guide to Family Life Afloat). Many of my articles and in-person seminars are as much about the love, respect, and admiration I have for my wife Carolyn and our child Roma Orion—as the boring mechanics of cruising offshore.

Yet I found Suzanne Heywood's Wavewalker highly intriguing. Why? Because I, too, had been raised aboard. Because I'm on my 65th year of living aboard—55 of those with my loving wife Carolyn. Because our grandkids and foster grandchildren currently sail with us nearly every other weekend. And finally, because we raised our beloved daughter Roma Orion aboard for the first 18 years of her life.

Sailing isn't just an occasional hobby with me—sailing is my life. And I've experienced much joy as a liveaboard child, teenager, adult, circumnavigator, marine scribe, husband, father, retiree, and grandfather.

Thus, the subject of kids and boats is one that is extremely dear to my heart—something I feel passionate about.

But times change. In the '50s when I grew up there were very few liveaboards, fewer families, and almost no children. I used to report with pride that I'd never met a boater who was a thief—no longer. I also used to believe that raising a kid aboard (except a posh teenager unwillingly yanked from their peer group) was all positive.

Not true—well, not in all cases. There was a party-hearty, rum-gulping, ganja-sucking cruising couple in Vieques, who raised two 'wild child' kids aboard an old wooden yawl—up to the point where one drowned off the bow and, 18 months later, the other was discovered dead on the bottom, directly under the transom. But what are you gonna do, right? Sh*t happens. What's the option except to take another swig of 151, shake your head ruefully, and forget about it already?

There was also a good ole boy in St. Croix who considered himself a bit of a marksman. For amusement while drunk, he used to toss his wife in the harbor and take potshots at her—seeing how close he could come. When I confronted him and implied that this game might not be considered PC-appropriate, he seemed confused.

"Damn, Fatty," he said. "I don't shoot her; I just shoot around her. Maybe you should mind your own business?"

Or the crackhead guy who progressed from sleeping in dinghies, to sleeping aboard unattended yachts. Then he got a tad too ambitious by deciding to open a floating whorehouse—about 25 feet in front of my forehatch. When I complained, he circled my vessel (with my wife and child cowering inside) informing us that he'd soon sink our vessel when we were ashore; if not today, tomorrow. (Luckily this ended well—someone killed the guy before I was forced to, thank you Lord!")

My point is that once upon a time boaters were special—a rare breed of gentle adventurers. No more. Especially now, with many of the 'van life' folks who are tired of hearing The Knock, deciding to stretch their sea legs.

How do I get off on these tangents?

Let's begin again: I'm a writer and nearly all writers like to read. I read for hours each day, and last week I read a book entitled Wavewalker by Suzanne Heywood. She spent ten years (and 50,000 nautical miles) of her youth as a liveaboard child—nearly the entire time plotting her escape. Not only did she feel trapped aboard the boat and confined by the constant foreign travel—she also was deprived of the one thing she wanted above all else—an education.

Her parents couldn't have cared less. Their focus was the horizon, not their complaining child.

Eventually Suzanne convinced her parents to allow her (spasmodically) to study via a correspondence course. Only they wouldn't sail to the pick-up/drop-off mail ports, often complained of the postage, and were horrified when her schoolwork interfered with her boat work.

Regardless, our life stories as 'boat kids' are so parallel and so bloody similar—despite our different circumstances, opposite objectives and contrary conclusions.

Her goal was to become a respected member of society—to get a PhD, to work for an international company, to have a brood of landlocked children, and to pen a fascinating book that would (deservedly) appear on various bestseller lists. (I highly recommend the book—it's a fine read—and about as opposite to my Chasing the Horizon as could be.)

She succeeds at her literary endeavor by chronicling her dreary childhood of being "...trapped in someone else's dream."

I, on the other hand, desired to not be trapped ashore—to never subjugate my will for the will of others nor for the cheap opiate of the Yankee dollar. I felt that not having to attend school was a wonderful bonus of the cruising lifestyle! My entire life has been, rightly or wrongly, in two modes —1. preparing to go to sea and 2. being at sea.

I rejected dirt-dwelling—with just as much passion as Suzanne embraced it.

Yet here we are—both happy, (somewhat) well-adjusted adults with loving families that took the same watery road to achieve almost diametrically opposite existences.

Even stranger, I'm impressed by some of her father's achievements—by the very same traits that horrified her.

No, he couldn't swim—yes, he managed to sail 50,000 miles to windward on a wholly unsuitable, high-maintenance vessel that required additional crew—constantly figuring out imaginative ways to keep the wooden Wavewalker in anti-fouling paint.

He chartered. He landscaped. He lectured. He exploited James Cook—and solicited funds in his name. He banged nails and told lies and broke promises and skipped out on loans—whatever it took. His weirdest trick was to toss long-term charter guests (who offended) ashore without returning their money—surely not charter-yacht-industry-approved behavior.

I'm not condoning any of this—only saying I understand the pressure the father was experiencing.

Suzanne's mother was a different kettle of fish. She wavered between slightly disliking her daughter—and really disliking her. And she had a tart tongue. One of few things her parents agreed upon was Suzanne's selfishness, especially when it came to schoolwork.

"Don't be so selfish—there are other people aboard this vessel, not just you!" was the mantra of the two people who made 100% of the decisions in Suzanne's difficult life.

There's a touch of Cinderella in the book. Her wicked ~~step-~~mother is constantly demanding Suzanne fetch this, do that, and find this... while all Suzanne wants to do is study and/or escape... which is viewed by the powers-that-be as mere laziness.

Worse, when Suzanne regularly awakes in terror from the PTSD dream of The Wave that almost killed them all in the middle of the Indian Ocean—she gets no sympathy, only cold instructions she refocus on her varnish brush.

...there's a lot of 'stiff upper lip' in this quintessentially British missive.

But the sections that touched me deepest were about a bewildered girl who constantly meets other children ashore... children with every-single-thing she so desperately craves... just long enough to be ripped from them, tossed back aboard, and forced to cross yet another scary ocean.

During one terrifying incident while visiting an orphanage, she doddles while leaving her newfound girlfriends. So, father, mother, brother, and ship sail away for a few days to teach her a lesson. And it does. She learns despair. And she realizes that both possibilities will be equally difficult—they will return or they won't.

What does Leo Tolstoy say about 'each family being unhappy in their own unique way?'

Another plot twist rears its head late in her detailed missive. After getting her PhD from Oxford, years after the forlorn Wavewalker is wrecked on a lonely reef and left for dead, Suzanne returns to the Pacific to stoically search for the boat's bones and her own watery roots.

She returns to the scene of the crime.

Curious. And more than a little telling.

She ends up with Wavewalker's compass—a sacred totem to steer her through the rest of her uncharted life.

I, too, have life-long recurring nightmares of Elizabeth—that some good Samaritan reading this publication has purchased her and hauled her out... and now expects me to stop my life to rebuild her yet again; endlessly and to little purpose.

No thanks.

Suzanne's book is thought-provoking, which is high praise indeed. It dredged up memories I'd prefer to forget—that I had conveniently forgotten. Plus, I read it at the same time as my daughter Roma Orion—both of us seeing both the positives and negatives of our own family experience reflected in Suzanne's tear-stained pages.

Suzanne is to be commended for being so revealing—both intentionally and not.

Roma thinks that Suzanne's problem wasn't so much with living aboard as with being forever transient, especially with parents who seemed to rub people the wrong way. And how funny it was that they clashed within minutes of setting out—on a ten-year journey. And how the parents always professed to be following James Cook's route—while almost never doing so.

But Roma's favorite part of the book was when the overplayed Bob Dylan tape is thrown overboard—YES!

Ed Balls of the Mail on Sunday calls the book, "Thrilling! An epic childhood journey." Other reviews gush with, "An electrifying story" and "...hardcore at times" and "A jaw-dropping real-life adventure."

I agree—and I hope that you, dear reader, will as well.

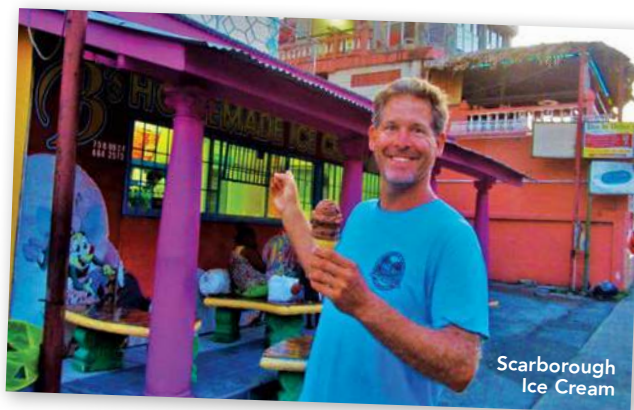

Scarborough Fort

Tobago Uncovered: 10 Must-Visit Spots on This Hidden Caribbean Gem

BY CAPT. SHANE McCLELLAN

Tobago is one of the lesser visited islands of the Eastern Caribbean and gets more Trinidadians vacationing there than outsiders, but the rest of the world is missing out. As a boater the bad news is the island runs from the southwest to the northeast and only has three good anchorages with other possible ones based on the weather. The east side of the island is home to the oldest protected rain forest in the Western Hemisphere and the west side has most of the beaches. Getting around the island is super easy since there is a ring road with a couple roads going across the island. With all that said, let's dive into my top ten for the island of Tobago.

Scarborough Ice Cream

10 Scarborough - While this is the main town of the island, there's not a whole lot of interest besides Fort St George which is well worth a visit. This fort was built to help protect the island, but since it did pass between the Spanish, French, and English over the years I am not sure how successful you can call it. Besides the great fort there is a great museum and the view over the city is wonderful. Another stop you should definitely make is the botanical garden, as it is a relaxing walk among native and non-native plants. Of course I could not, not mention a great ice cream shop if there is one and B's Homemade Ice Cream definitely fits the bill.

9 Crown Point - This is the southwest end of the island and is the location of the airport and where most of the tourists stay. For boaters, Store Bay gives you the best anchorage opportunity on the entire island and Store Bay Beach and Pigeon Point are quite popular. Fort Milford is a small little fort used to protect this anchorage from invaders and is kind of cool to check out. The local pier seems to make it into every travel brochure for Trinidad and Tobago.

8 Charlotteville - At the other end of the island, on the northeast point, is a great little community that feels cut off from the rest of the island since you have to go over the hills and drop down into it. Man O War Bay is a decent anchorage and you will find everything you need here, but in limited quantity. The pier and beach are nice places to hang out as you take it easy in this little community that feels as if the rest of the world left it behind.

7 Englishman's Bay - Tobago has quite a few beaches to choose from, but my favorite was Englishman's Bay. The water is fantastic and the sand is delightful, but what I enjoy the most was the rope swing off the bar's deck and the small creek behind the beach. The best part is that this particular beach wasn't that crowded and you definitely could have your own space here.

Englishman's Bay

Interior - Highland Waterfall

6 The interior - While the beaches get most of the attention on an island, the interior of Tobago is well worth exploring. My second favorite waterfall on the island, Highland Waterfall, was a great hike and a wonderful dip into a small canyon. The Hillborough dam was interesting as was the lake behind it and you can usually find locals with their small, caged birds hanging out up here taking in the fresh air. I also really enjoyed exploring Nutmeg Grove, although it was difficult to find. This is an old plantation ruins that had the remains of a watermill I found interesting and photogenic.

5 Little Tobago Island - A mile off the northeast coast is a small island that has been turned into a protective bird sanctuary. The only way on the island is to have one of the locals at Speyside take you across by boat, but it's worth it. There are some wonderful hiking trails here and the birds truly are spectacular.

Getting to Little Tobago Island

Me with a tortoise at Genesis Nature Park

4 Genesis Nature Park - Halfway along the east coast, my buddy and I found an unexpected gem when we visited Genesis Nature Park. This is essentially a local's backyard that is absolutely spectacular. He enthusiastically showed us parrots, cayman, a pick pocketing monkey, tortoises, and so much more. He even had a baby pig that we were able to help bottle feed. We had so much fun here.

For those who crave yachting bliss.
This is where they come.

Swiss Family Robinson waterfall

3 Swiss Family Robinson sites - The 1960 Disney live action movie was filmed on Tobago. While the amazing treehouse did not make it past a hurricane in 1965, I still found it a lot of fun to visit the couple of beaches, waterfall (that happens to be a town's water source), and hill (where they fought the pirates) that they filmed the movie. Given how long ago the movie was, a lot of people don't realize it was filmed here but it is a lot of fun to find the various sites.

2 Buccoo Reef - You can't visit the Caribbean without snorkeling a reef or two and this reef is spectacular. It sits just north of the southwest end of the island off of Pigeon Point and has lots of great coral heads to snorkel and is protected by a barrier reef. In the middle is a chest deep area of white sand that people like to hang out at and it's called Nylon Pool. Also, around Pigeon Point you will find Bon Accord Lagoon and a spit of land called No Man's Land where boats love to beach so people can get out to party.

1 Argyle Waterfall - My favorite spot on Tobago was definitely Argyle Waterfall. This is a multi-step waterfall and my buddy and I had a blast going from level to level. We were told there's something like 30 plus small waterfalls making up this whole site and the best way to visit is to go from the top and work your way down, but we did it from the bottom and made it halfway up. It is just such a great activity and a fun way to be in the water.

Argyle Waterfall

I hope my top 10 of Tobago has perked your interest to check it out. Trust me, if you make it here you will not be disappointed.

Party Like a Local: 6 Caribbean Carnivals Not to Miss!

BY CAROL M. BAREUTHER

It's always Carnival time somewhere in the Caribbean. This lively celebration, rooted in African culture, is a festive multi-day mix of music, dance, food and drink, king and queen and calypso competitions, parades with elaborate costumes and floats, and much more. Each Caribbean island celebrates in its own time and with signature variations on the theme that set this fete apart from its neighbors. Here's a sampling of 6 Caribbean carnivals not to miss:

MARCH 3-4:

Trinidad & Tobago Carnival

French settlers introduced the Fat Tuesday masquerade tradition here in the late 18th century. Hence, this southernmost two-island Caribbean nation's celebration is the grand-daddy of them all, known as the 'Greatest Show on Earth.' Since it happens early in the year, calypsonians and costume makers from other islands will visit to see the year's hot Carnival trends to carry over to their own festivities. Calypso and steel drums both came from Trinidad & Tobago. The best comes last when the two-day grand-style street parade in Port of Spain culminates the merry-making. ncctt.org

APRIL 26-MAY 3:

St. Thomas Carnival

Queen and Princess pageants, Calypso Monarch competitions, and Pan-O-Rama, from early to mid-April, lead up to the last week of the month, where there are free nightly musical performances in the Carnival Village in Charlotte Amalie. This week also plays host to the Food Fair, where nearly 100 vendors offer Virgin Islands food and drink delicacies, plus Carnival Boat Races in the harbor and two days of Children's and Adult's parades with costumed troupes, floupes (troupes with a float), steel pan bands and stilt-walking Mocko Jumbies. www.visitusvi.com/events/st-thomas-carnival/

JULY 2-9: Vincy Mas

Also known as the St. Vincent and the Grenadines Carnival, the crescendo of fun hits its peak in the last two days, and it is called J'ouvert and Mardi Gras. J'ouvert, meaning 'daybreak,' features revelers decked out in colorful paint and powder greet the sunrise with soca and steel pan music. J'ouvert is also a T-shirt Mas, where it's easy to dress in a creative T, dinghy in, and dance through the streets. For Mardi Gras, there are parades, street parties, and performances all centered on Kingston's streets. Before this, there's a day designated for T-shirt Mas, vincymas.vc/vincymas-2025/

JULY 30-AUGUST 5: Barbados Crop Over Carnival

Once a gathering to mark the end of sugar cane season on the island, there are street parties, king and queen pageants, local foods, arts and crafts, art exhibitions, and concerts today. The highlight is the Grand Kadooment Day parade, with masquerade bands and local and visiting merrymakers parading through the streets of St. Michaels from the National Stadium to the Mighty Grynner Highway. Pop singer and Bajan-native, Rihanna, is often in attendance. www.visitbarbados.org/grand-kadooment

clean-exhaust^{COM} SYSTEMS

APPLICABLE WITH GAS/ WATER SEPARATOR MUFFLERS

PROCESS: clean-exhaust's dosing pump injects the specifically formulated ecoBrew™ into the generator /engine raw water cooling system before the spray ring. The ecoBrew™ emulsifies the diesel particulate matter and soot as it passes through the piping and muffler, much like the agitation action in a washing machine. No back pressure is created in the process.

RESULT: The exhaust gas is expelled with little or no particulate, facilitating cleaner air, cleaner harbors, cleaner oceans, cleaner hulls and boot stripes with no floating sheen or sludge.

Festival Boat Racing

JULY 21-AUGUST 11: Anguilla Summer Festival

Boat racing figures prominently in this Carnival-like jubilee, which celebrates 50 years in 2025. It's no wonder! Boat racing is the national sport of Anguilla. Teams race from scratch, wood-built deckless boats with sandbags for ballast in the 28-foot A Class or 23-foot B Class. Sandy Ground is the epicenter for sailors, while spectators jump in their vehicles for the 'landrace' or overlooks around the island where it's easy to see and cheer for who's in the lead. The Champion of Champion is named after 6 A and 4 B class races. All the signature carnival events take place here, too, like colorful pageants and parades, and plenty of food, drink, and music. anguillasummerfestival.com

Spotlight: TOP REFIT & HURRICANE STORAGE BOATYARDS

EXPERIENCE MATTERS ...

This is the perfect time to Refit, Upgrade, Fix or simply place your beloved boat into hibernation for the hurricane season. Who are you going to trust to take care of your prized possession? Take a moment ... The selection of a boatyard to meet your needs and exceed your expectations can be a daunting challenge. We're making the choice easy for you. Here's a spotlight on several of the Top Boatyards that specialize in Refit and Hurricane Storage. This special section will provide an inside look at their capabilities and help you create a relationship to get the job done. We welcome recommendations for yards to include in next year's edition!

Bobby's MegaYard

SINT MAARTEN

The Megayard in Sint Maarten has been open now for 14 years and is located in Cole Bay across the lagoon from Simpson Bay Yacht Club. This branch has 2 Travelifts: a 150 metric ton (165 US ton) machine that can haul vessels up to 33 feet wide. And a second machine of 75 tons for the smaller sail boats. This machine can accommodate a 19 foot wide vessel.

This Yard has 24 hour security guard and a 3 meter security wall surrounding the yard with night security lighting. In near proximity to the yard, all within walking distance are a full array of the best vendors of marine parts and equipment in the Caribbean. In addition to this, there is a full selection of vendors supplying all the services one might need performed from: sail makers to rigging, welding, mechanical, refrigeration and electrical all within easy walking distance of the Megayard.

There is a second location of the Megayard alongside the Airport. This Yard has a 50 ton Travelift for the smaller vessels. Here we accommodate the vessels that wish to stay out for a long term. This yard has a security fence and lighting but there is no security guard on duty.

At both the facilities professional assistance is available to solve your boating problems and we have an array of subcontractors that can assist with any work needed to be performed from welding to electrical. The Megayard is experienced at doing your bottom painting and as we use environmentally friendly dustless sanders, we do all work below the waterline without any dust. We offer very competitive pricing and estimates are available upon request for the sanding and painting of the bottom. As we here in Sint Maarten are in the hurricane belt, we of course offer hurricane storage. The Hurricane Season is between the months of June to November. This is a very popular service and early booking is essential. The boats will be chocked and cross braced for security with the masts of keel boats removed as a precaution. Many owners take the opportunity to inspect both rigging and mast at this time. Catamarans are offered hurricane concrete hold down blocks and are chocked both forward and aft to prevent any movement during a storm. We at the Megayard feel that we will offer you our customer a satisfying and professional stay in our yard and we look forward to being of service to you.

Bocas Yacht Services

BOCAS DEL TORO, PANAMA

The Boatyard in the Undiscovered Caribbean

Besides being a full-service haul-out facility, the Bocas del Toro boatyard has two significant advantages. First, it is in Western Panama, which many sailors call The Undiscovered Caribbean. And second, it is below the hurricane belt, which is great for boat security and insurance reasons.

The yard itself is staffed with a crew that has been there for many years. Both English and Spanish are spoken. They can do welding, painting, electrical, plumbing and fiberglass repair. Several boats each year receive complete paint jobs. New for 2025, they feature highly-reliable Starlink internet that is available for FREE.

The yard has a telescoping crane that can handle up to 20 tons. It is mostly used for removing masts and installing diesel engines and lifting heavy outboards.

High quality bottom paints are always available and special orders can be easily handled.

The Travel-lift can accommodate 60 ton vessels with a beam of no more than 20 feet. Boat owners can do their own work or hire the professionals at very reasonable rates. There is also lots of long-term dry storage.

Finally, a few more sentences about Bocas del Toro in general. This large archipelago is geographically aligned so that it is almost an inland sea. The normal waves are about knee-high and on a stormy day they might become waist high. There are dozens of nearly empty anchorages surrounded by beaches, mangroves and jungle. Bocas also has a nice, small airport that makes international travel quite convenient.

The magical San Blas Islands are only a few days sail from Bocas del Toro. Midway between them is the gateway to the South Pacific – The Panama Canal.

Almost anything is available in the laid-back town. It boasts an amazing selection of bars and restaurants that cater to the locals and to the cruisers, surfers and back-packers.

There is a big Ex-pat, full-time community in Bocas. Many of them are cruisers, who liked the area so much that they threw out the hook and built a beautiful off-the-grid home. Many also set up local businesses or are tele-commuting. It is an extraordinary place and Mellow with a capital M.

Imagine a renowned marina and full service boatyard uniquely situated in a natural hurricane hole and you start to get the idea behind why the combination of Compass Point Marina and Independent Boatyard & Marina are so special and so in demand.

To your benefit, the timing is right as we now have a brand new 500 foot dock extension added to Compass Point Marina expanding our capacity and specifically designed with wide slips for catamarans.

Boatyard Facts

Independent Boatyard & Marina is located in St. Thomas, US Virgin Islands on the South side of St. Thomas. The boatyard and marina are located in Benner Bay (sometimes known as the "lagoon"), which is a protected hurricane hole. On premises businesses include a Machine shop, an Outboard repair shop, and a large Budget Marine chandlery. A large food store (Food Center) is located across the street from the boatyard and down a 1/2 block The eastend town and harbor of Red Hook (Vessup Bay on charts) is about 2 miles east of the boatyard and has numerous restaurants, a pharmacy, and another food store. Red Hook is also the terminus of the St. Thomas to St. John ferry, which usually runs hourly.

The yard is equipped with a 50 ton Marine Travelift (up to 18 feet of beam), 35 ton crane and a 35 ton Hostar Marine yard transporter used for close stacking during hurricane season. The channel into Benner Bay is marked with day shapes on pilings with a depth of 8ft at high tide and 7 feet at low tide in the channel. Please call the office for an emailed channel chart but as a rule, favor the red.

Combined Marina Facts

There is a 93 slip Marina attached to the boatyard, which does long term slip rentals (three months or more). Our sister marina, Compass Point Marina, which has 195 slips, is just South of Independent Boatyard & Marina in Benner Bay bordering the entry channel. Compass Point Marina does do transient slip rental on a space available basis. Safe Harbor Puerto del Rey

FAJARDO, PUERTO RICO

Safe Harbor Puerto Del Rey in Puerto Rico is the largest and most complete marina in the Caribbean; their first-class facilities have seen significant improvements and plan to bring more amenities for their members in the upcoming years. Those improvements, combined with its strategic location (surrounded by mangroves and mountains), helped in their success over the past hurricane seasons and historical storms. The massive breakwater played a crucial role in saving hundreds of vessels in the water, and the steel and concrete foundations in the Hurricane Storage proved to be critical in saving hundreds of boats on land. The marina has a 1.5-Megawatt generator capable of running all the facilities and ensuring they are even more prepared for any future events. The marina has over 200 tie-down spaces that hook into 3 feet of concrete. Vessels are tied down with 10,000-lb straps, tested, and proven successful during the 2017 hurricane season. This program requires a 4-month minimum agreement. Spaces are limited! Call or write them today to ask about Hurricane Storage options.

The Safe Harbor Puerto del Rey Boat Yard is the only yard in the Caribbean with 5 travel lifts; the most powerful of which is capable of hauling out vessels up to 150 tons. There are also bull forklifts that can haul vessels up to 45' LOA and 32,000 lbs. You can rest assured that your vessel, regardless of size or service needed, can be taken in by Safe Harbor Puerto Del Rey.

Do you need to get some work done on your boat? They have you covered! Safe Harbor Puerto del Rey is home to 14 authorized contractors, some of them, have built reputations as the best in the region. This gives you the ability to select the contractor whose skillset matches your needs and whose prices come within your budget; all this without leaving the marina! Some of the areas the contractors excel in include propulsion systems, motor repair and mechanics, woodworking, welding and metal fabrication, electrical repair, fiberglass repair and finishing, and bottom maintenance and painting.

As if that was not enough, Safe Harbor Puerto Del Rey offers a wide variety of amenities to their guests and boat owners. Get gas or diesel at the Fuel dock and get some work done by connecting to the free marina Wi-Fi. Take a break from the water and stay in one of their on-premises apartments (1 and 2 bedrooms available). There is also a gym, golf cart service, jogging trail, a heliport, on-site car rental service, laundry facilities, and two of the best restaurants in town. Safe Harbor Puerto Del Rey is your one stop shop in the Caribbean for all your boating needs.

"Our range of services will make your visit more convenient and productive. Our excellent contractors, first class facilities, and dedicated staff will make it an unforgettable experience. We are more than a marina ... we are your gateway to the Caribbean."

Sleek dyneema instead of rusty wires

Ditching Rust for Strength: Upgrading to Dyneema Lifelines

TEXT & PHOTOS BY BIRGIT HACKL AND CHRISTIAN FELDBAUER

Our Pitufa was designed with a pulpit at the bow and quite a substantial pushpit around the stern and up to the center cockpit (all made of sturdy stainless tubes) as well as stainless steel stanchions along the deck with two rows of plastic-coated wire going through those stanchions. A safe setup for a bluewater cruising boat. The wire initially looked quite pretty, white and shiny, but soon the coating cracked and ugly rust stains started discoloring it. Even worse, the rust also seeped out and ran down the stanchions—no matter how often we polished, we just couldn't win that endless battle against blotchy stains. We replaced the lifelines a few years ago, but the new wire was of even lower quality and started getting rusty within half a dozen months, so the polishing battle went on. We have a habit of going round the boat after every passage with a bucket of water to wipe salt off the sprayhood, solar panels, shrouds and stanchions, which helps keep corrosion at bay, but the rusty wire marred all our efforts. Now we have finally got rid of those ugly lifelines and have replaced them with dyneema!

Why dyneema?

According to Wikipedia "Dyneema Composite Fabric (DCF), is a high-performance non-woven composite material used in high-strength, low-weight applications. It is constructed from a thin sheet of ultra-high-molecular-weight polyethylene (UHMWPE) laminated between two sheets of polyester".

Mobius Brummel splice

Long Bury splice with stitching

5 inch gap

Dyneema is 15 times stronger than steel per weight and 40% stronger than aramids. It's UV-resistant, abrasion resistant, light enough to float on water and doesn't stretch much. More and more sailors are using dyneema instead of stainless steel shrouds. For our purpose we chose a 6 mm hollow-braid line, which has an impressive breaking load of somewhere between 3 and 4 tons according to different sources. Unfortunately this high-tech material is rather expensive, but we only needed about 40 meters for two lines of lifelines on our 41 ft monohull.

Researching splices

We started with removing the old wires, followed by a day of scrubbing and sanding and polishing the stanchions to get rid of all the corrosion. Then we got out the roll of sleek, black dyneema. The old wires were fixed with turnbuckles to the pushpit and pulpit. That solution wouldn't work well with the new lines. Christian started googling options and watching YouTube videos—the variety of splicing and knotting options seemed overwhelming at first, but in the end we decided to go for two of the simpler solutions. We would fix the eyes on the forward ends of the lifelines with locking splices without thimble and the other side with simple bury splices around a thimble plus stitches to avoid sliding. We needed a large fid (slightly larger than the diameter of the line) for the actual splicing, a small fid to pull out strands to taper the ends, a sharp pair of scissors, and a large needle and twine to fix the second splice.

We chose a "Mobius Brummel locking splice" (see pic 1) for the forward eye splice as the easiest way to make this is to have both tails free, pass the first tail through the second tail, then the second tail through the first tail. The end result is a solid splice which can't slide apart because they lock each other. It would be too complicated to explain the splice in detail here, but there are plenty of instructive videos available online. Tip: the line must be considerably longer cut off than the finished result! The instructions we used stated that "The tail that is to be buried needs to be 72 times the diameter of the line. If the line used is 6mm, therefore, $6\text{mm} \times 72 = 432\text{mm}$, or 17 inches". We used half a meter—and that's just for the first splice!

First splice done, the eye is led through the metal attachment on the pulpit and the long end passed back through the eye.

Tensioning the lifelines

Then we fed the line through the stanchions and did a “Long Bury Splice” (see pic 2) with stitching and wrapping at the other end. We went for this method as this splice is relatively easy to undo and redo (unlike the Mobius Brommel and other solutions) in case you have to change something with the stanchions or do some other adjustment with the lifelines.

For measuring the length, we left a gap of about 12 cm (5 inches) before doing the second splice as the spliced section of the rope will be thicker and therefore shorter than the yet unspliced material (see pic 3). Dyneema doesn’t stretch much and in order to tighten the lifelines so much that they would feel safe to lean (or stumble) against, we fixed and tensioned them with lashings, using a 4 mm non-stretch line with 3 loops (see pic 4).

The first lifeline took a long time and we even had to redo a splice after breaking a stanchion cap (hence the decision to do a Long Bury splice). The following ones went easier with practice and we are very pleased with Pitufa’s new look wearing elegant black lifelines!

Doing softshackles with leftover dyneema

Luperón, Dominican Republic: A Hidden Haven for Cruising Sailors

BY ERICA LAROCHE, BVI YACHT SALES

As sailors chart their course southward from the United States, many navigate the notorious “thorny path”—a challenging Caribbean route marked by relentless upwind sailing and unpredictable weather. Among these trials, Luperón, on the northern coast of the Dominican Republic, has earned a reputation as a hidden gem—a welcoming sanctuary offering safe harbor, affordable services, and a vibrant community for those seeking more than a brief stopover. For cruisers adjusting to the demands of extended Caribbean travel, Luperón serves as an inviting refuge to rest, refit, and often settle into the laid-back rhythm of island life.

Luperón’s Latin American flair adds to its charm, making it a unique and culturally rich destination. The strong sense of community is one of the main reasons why so many sailors end up staying longer than they initially planned. The local cruisers’ network is active and thriving, with events regularly posted on the Luperón Sailors and Cruisers

Facebook page. From weekly yoga sessions to the popular Captain’s Table event every Thursday at Puerto Blanco Marina, to lively trivia nights at TK Bistro, there’s always something happening to foster camaraderie and connection.

At the heart of Luperón’s appeal is its natural harbor, a prime attraction for sailors seeking shelter. Nestled along the northern coast, the bay’s geographical features make it an ideal refuge, especially for those weary from the open ocean or facing the looming hurricane season. Surrounded by lush hills that act as a natural barrier against storms and the mountains to the south, the calm, sheltered waters offer one of the safest anchorages in the Caribbean. For cruisers seeking refuge during the hurricane season, Luperón's blend of natural protection and affordable, long-term mooring options provides not only security but peace of mind. The moorings here are refreshingly affordable compared to other Caribbean marinas, often a welcome surprise for U.S.-based sailors accustomed to higher fees. With the option to safely store their vessels, cruisers find Luperón a convenient base—whether for a break from their travels or to wait out the stormy season.

Recently, these moorings have undergone significant upgrades. A dedicated group of cruisers, working with the owners of the mooring balls, has improved their design, with many now equipped with triple barrels, swivels, and new lines. While regular inspection is still advised, the moorings are now in much better condition than in years past, offering a safe and reliable anchorage.

That said, arriving in Luperón does come with a few navigational challenges, particularly for first-time visitors. The entrance to the bay is narrow, but with accurate Navionics charts, sailors can safely navigate the route. While some might initially feel trepidation, those who venture in are quickly rewarded with the beauty of the bay and the warmth of the community. Local guides and fellow cruisers are always eager to offer advice, turning what could be a daunting experience into a seamless entry. The bay does have a few shallow spots, but again, Navionics charts highlight these areas for safe navigation.

One of Luperón's most defining features is its thriving, diverse community of cruisers—full-time sailors, seasonal residents, and newcomers all adjusting to life on the water. This international network of sailors has fostered a cooperative, welcoming atmosphere where support and camaraderie are the norm. For cruisers navigating the challenges of Caribbean life, this community is an invaluable resource. It provides an immediate sense of belonging, complete with social events, community gatherings, and shared resources. From the Captain's Table and trivia nights to karaoke at Wendy's Bar, the town exudes a friendly, laid-back vibe that offers both security and a sense of familiarity—rare commodities along the thorny path.

Joining the town's WhatsApp groups, known as the "Rat Pack," can further connect newcomers to the community. From there, you can tap into a wealth of local knowledge, whether it's for motorbike rides through the stunning countryside, free yoga sessions, coordinating with cruisers heading south, or sharing in impromptu musical jam sessions—Luperón truly has something for everyone.

Luperón's boatyard and affordable repair services further enhance its reputation as a prime stopover for sailors in need of boat maintenance. The town boasts skilled local craftsmen and easy access to essential parts, and if you're looking for something specific, freight forwarding companies can quickly deliver packages from Miami. For sailors who've encountered mechanical, rigging, or hull issues since leaving the U.S., this accessible and cost-effective support network provides much-needed relief and reassurance. The boatyard here is known for its good workmanship and reasonable prices, making it a great place to tackle both minor repairs and major refits without the inflated costs often associated with other Caribbean hubs.

In addition to repairs, Luperón offers rare, affordable long-term storage solutions—something hard to come by in the Caribbean. For those needing to leave their vessel while attending to personal matters or returning home, Luperón's low-cost mooring and storage options provide an attractive alternative. Many sailors, particularly from the U.S., use the harbor as a secure place to leave their boats during hurricane season or family visits. The harbor's reputation as a safe storage haven has helped establish a loyal base of returning cruisers, creating a stable community of familiar faces while also welcoming new arrivals. And for those concerned about leaving their boat unattended, a local couple offers a "boat watch" program, checking on your vessel while you're away, providing regular updates and photos to ensure all systems are running smoothly.

Another unique aspect of Luperón is its role as a vibrant hub for buying and selling boats. With its proximity to an international airport and a steady flow of cruisers, Luperón serves as a natural marketplace for those looking to buy a new vessel or sell their current one. The local boat market offers sailors a chance to find reasonably priced boats in a secure and supportive environment. A local broker and community recommendations make the transaction process straightforward, without the high pressure atmosphere of larger yacht markets. Whether you're looking to buy or sell, Luperón's practical resources and friendly community make it a sensible choice for boat owners. With over ten vessels already on the market, there's a good chance you'll find the boat of your dreams here.

Beyond its practical advantages, Luperón also offers cruisers an authentic taste of Caribbean life. The town is a lively blend of Dominican culture and international influence, with local eateries, vibrant social events, and a welcoming atmosphere that makes visitors feel truly immersed in the heart of the Caribbean. For many sailors, Luperón becomes an enriching cultural experience that deepens their understanding of the region. As a gateway to the Caribbean, it offers a balanced introduction to the islands, combining a friendly environment with opportunities to explore the local culture.

While your boat is safely moored in Luperón, it's the perfect base for exploring all that the Dominican Republic has to offer. Many cruisers have enjoyed hiking the famous 27

Waterfalls of Damajagua, cooling off in the mountain air of Jarabacoa, or summing Pico Duarte, the highest peak in the Caribbean, where you can even experience snow in the winter months. Don't miss the lively Carnival celebrations in February, with colorful parades along the boardwalk in Puerto Plata. Luperón serves as an ideal gateway to explore the rich natural beauty and cultural heritage of Hispaniola—your adventure awaits.

Luperón is much more than just a waypoint along the thorny path—it's a destination in its own right. With its secure harbor, affordable services, tight-knit community, and authentic Caribbean charm, Luperón has become an essential stop for sailors making the transition from U.S. waters to Caribbean cruising. For those seeking a safe anchorage, a supportive network, and a chance to truly experience the heart of the Caribbean, Luperón offers everything you need to make your southern journey both memorable and rewarding. 🌴

March Flavors: Herb-Crusted Rack of Lamb with Perfect Sides

CARIBBEAN COOKING | BY CAP'N JAN ROBINSON

March is commonly regarded as a time for new beginnings and opportunities. It is often described with the phrase, "in like a lion and out like a lamb."

HERB-TOPPED RACK OF LAMB

Prep time: 15 minutes. Cooking time: 20 minutes. Serves: 4

1 rack of lamb (8 ribs, about 1.5 lbs)

3 Tbsp. olive oil

2 cloves garlic, minced

2 Tbsp Dijon mustard

1 Tbsp fresh rosemary, finely chopped

1 Tbsp fresh thyme, finely chopped

1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese (optional)

Salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste

Preheat the oven to 425°F (220°C). Line a baking sheet with parchment paper or foil for easy cleanup. Trim any excess fat from the rack of lamb. Season generously with salt and pepper on all sides. Heat 1Tbsp of olive oil in a large skillet over medium-high heat. Sear the rack of lamb for 2-3 minutes on each side until golden brown. Remove and let rest for a few minutes. In a small bowl, mix the garlic, Dijon mustard, rosemary, thyme, and 1Tbsp olive oil.

Brush the topping mixture evenly over the lamb. Place the rack of lamb on the prepared baking sheet, bone side down. Roast for 15 - 20 minutes, or until the internal temperature reaches 125°F (52°C) for medium-rare or cook to your preferred doneness. Remove from the oven and let the lamb rest for 5-10 minutes before slicing into double or individual chops. Serve with the below sides or your favorites!

ROASTED AIR FRYER BROCCOLI

Prep time: 5 minutes. Cooking time: 8-10 minutes. Serves: 4

1 lb. fresh broccoli florets

2 Tbsp olive oil

1/2 tsp garlic powder

1/2 tsp Mediterranean salt

Freshly ground black pepper, to taste

1 Tbsp grated Parmesan cheese (optional)

Preheat the air fryer: Set your air fryer to 375°F (190°C) and let it preheat for about 3 minutes. Prepare the broccoli: In a large bowl, toss the broccoli florets with olive oil, garlic powder, Mediterranean salt, and pepper. Ensure all florets are evenly coated. Air fry: Place the seasoned broccoli in a single layer in the air fryer basket. Avoid overcrowding to ensure even cooking. Air fry for 8-10 minutes, shaking the basket halfway through for even roasting. The broccoli should be tender with slightly crispy, caramelized edges.

Add finishing touches: If desired, sprinkle with Parmesan cheese immediately after cooking while the broccoli is still hot. Serve: Transfer to a serving dish and enjoy immediately. It's a great side dish for any meal!

CARROTS AND PARSNIPS MASH

Prep time: 5 minutes. Cooking time: 20 minutes. Serves: 4

1 lb. carrots, coarsely chopped

1 lb. parsnips, peeled and coarsely chopped

2 oz. butter

Salt to taste

Pinch of ground nutmeg

Ground black pepper, to taste

Bring a large pot of salted water to a boil. Add carrots, cover partially and simmer 5 minutes. Add parsnips and cover partially. Simmer until vegetables are very tender, about 15 minutes. Drain well.

Return vegetables to saucepan and stir over medium heat until any excess moisture evaporates. Transfer to food processor or like me, mash with a hand-held potato masher. Add butter and process/mash until smooth (although I like mine a little chunky). Season with nutmeg, salt, and pepper. Serve.

TIP: Can be made a few hours ahead. Warm over low heat, stirring often.

INFO: One of my favourite New Zealand starch dishes.

2023 Neel 43' Catara

PRICE: $449,000

BUILDER: NEEL

Reduced for Quick Sale!

Catara is an innovative and spacious trimaran designed by Marc Lombard for exceptional comfort and performance. With a sleek, modern design and the versatility to handle both bluewater cruising and coastal exploration, she offers the best of both worlds. Catara was purchased new in late 2023 and sailed across the Atlantic to the Caribbean. The owners thoroughly enjoyed their time sailing Catara, but plans change, and she is now available right in the heart of the Caribbean's best cruising grounds, Grenada.

No expense was spared outfitting her for comfortable, fast cruising, and she's easily the best value Neel 43 available. She was maintained with love and an open checkbook, and she's ready to sail away! Catara's shallow draft make her an ideal cruiser for the Grenadines and beyond, and her air conditioning will keep you cool in those secluded anchorages. Her low engine hours are a testament to her sailing abilities, and all of her systems and equipment were fully serviced before putting her on the market.

Kaniché Fiji Islands Double Wood: Does the Hype Live Up to the Hype?

RUM REVIEW BY TERRY AND CLINT BORAM

New rums are not gracing the shelves of our local store as readily as we would like. Every month, the same sea of ornate bottles with white, golden, and dark rum tends to blend together. This month, however, a turquoise wooden box was smack dab in the middle of the aisle, calling us to try. Kaniché Fiji Islands Double Wood has the packaging down in spades. Now, let's see if it's worthy of those marketing dollars.

The Kaniché brand is produced by Maison Ferrand, of Cognac, France, renowned for their exceptional Pierre Ferrand Cognac and distinctive fine spirits. CEO Alexandre Gabriel began his adventure into the world of rum in 1990 when Maison Ferrand was nearly broke. To make extra money, Alexandre realized he could sell his seasoned Grande Champagne Cognac barrels to rum producers in the Caribbean at three times the price of ex-bourbon barrels. Alexandre became fascinated by how soil and climate created a diversity of rum taste. Soon, the Plantation Brand was born, sourcing bulk rums already distilled and aged in their tropical "birth country" and then sent to Maison Ferrand to age further in cognac barrels. The Kaniché brand has followed in Plantation's footsteps.

Kaniché Fiji Islands Double Wood begins at the South Pacific Rum Distillery in Lautoka, the only rum distillery in Fiji. The rum is made using traditional Fijian methods, starting with hand-cut sugar cane grown in the island's rich volcanic soil and pure filtered water from the island's lush landscape. The cane creates rich, dark Fijian molasses then distilled in a combination of pot and column stills, stoked by a wood-burning stove. The rum is then aged for three years in small ex-bourbon oak barrels in Fiji's tropical climate before being sent to Maison Ferrand to be finished for another year in French oak barrels.

REVIEW

The light golden color hugs the glass leaving large droplets cascading down the side. The color, however, leads us to believe the rum is very young. An earthy note wafting from the glass reminds us of wet wood in the mangroves. Terry picks up a slight sweetness from semi-ripe pineapples. It's more the outer husk of the pineapple with just a hint of pineapple. We agree that the initial sip is smooth and inviting with a really good mouthfeel, but it finishes with an alcohol burn. After swirling the rum a bit more to release the alcohol, our next sip continued to present the woody notes, followed by a warm and satisfying finish with hints of apricot and dried currant. There's a little to explore with this young rum, but the smoothness of the liquid keeps bringing us back for more.

OVERALL

A manager at our local store highly recommended Kaniché Fiji Islands Double Wood. We agree that the rum drinks smoothly, but it lacks the nuances we typically enjoy in our sipping rums. The saving grace is the rum makes a great Old Fashioned. At $37/bottle, we expected a little bit more.

3.5 OF 5

ABOUT CLINT AND TERRY: We have sampled many a dram over our 33 years of marriage and quite often we don't fully agree. Could be the difference is male/female taste buds. Or, somebody is just wrong.
